PREFACE

This history of the Work family has been long in the making. There was much available material scattered all over the country, references by the hundreds, and many individuals to work with. A brief word of credit must be given here to a few of the people who have done so much to make this book a success.

During the course of research on my husband's direct (Hamilton) line, I received a letter, dated 13 January 1966, from Mrs. Walter (Twila Hoover) Steele of Punxsutawney, Pa. She revealed the name of my husband's great grandmother, Rachel Work, expressed an interest in the research and promised further help. I have been unable to contact her successfully since that time but am grateful to her for leading me to the name of Work, which led me to the following:

1. THE WORK FAMILY, published in 1894 at the Marion Center Independent Office by Moses T. Steele and Edith Work.

2. A thorough search of the card catalog at the Genealogical Library in Salt Lake City, Utah yielded hundreds of useful references for bits and pieces of Work family information. The ones listed were perhaps the greatest help:

    a. Stewart's History of Indiana County (1913)

    b. Pennsylvania Archives Publications

    c. "Family Tree" editions

    d. Microfilmed Census Records

    e. Pennsylvania Family Records—a large collection of approximately 360 films, each 100 feet long and containing from 300 to 1000 pages of records.

f. Microfilmed probate and land records

g. Numerous church and cemetery records

3. The small booklet published in 1961 by Horace G. Work of Glen Campbell, Pa. and containing an updating of his own direct lineage.

4. A complete outline of the descendants of Josiah Work as submitted by Miss Janet C. Work of Ft. Morgan, Colo. Miss Work has also supplied many of the older photos.

5. The descendants of Alexander Work (b abt 1745) have been contributed by Miss Emma Work of Upper Darby, Pa.

6. The descendants of Andrew Work (b abt 1704) were a contribution of Mrs. Weldon (Vivian Campbell) Work of California.

7. THE McCALL HISTORY, published by Max McCall of Indiana, Pa. records many Work families.

8. The Miller family—outlined by Mrs. Olen Dunmire. The Stiteler family—outlined by John Dee Stiteler. The Ewing family—outlined by Goldie (Ewing) Wilson.

9. Bits and pieces of Work family data gathered over a period of many years by Etta (Work) Krytzer. While unable to see or examine these notes and incorporate them into my records, I sincerely appreciate her untiring efforts and am sure her diligence and enthusiasm helped to keep interest alive in the eventual publication of A WORK FAMILY HISTORY.

10. Mr. and Mrs. Colin James of Denver, Colorado had been working on a history for a number of years and sent their files to me late in my research, thus providing some new leads and enabling me to compare my work with theirs.

11. William Work Carithers for the Tunnel Mill John families.

12. In most cases, it is obvious who contributed the facts and photos. There were a few, however, who went that extra mile with me. To these I am especially grateful. I would like to specifically remember Alice Moore for the wonderful photos she was able to unearth, also for the loan of her copy of Caldwell's History of Indiana County. Forty three families in our church set to and indexed this old volume to make it more useful for all researchers everywhere. The index contains 16,000 different names for a total of over 34,000 entries.

    Paul Richardson, of Rochester Mills, Pa., spent many hours gathering addresses, explaining relationships, collecting newspaper clippings, locating sources not known to me, and being continually helpful.

These two, along with Ruth (Hopkins) Steele, have been a constant source of encouragement to me. Their letters, coming along conveniently at the most appropriate times, bolstered my sometimes faltering courage and straightened out tangled relationships.

Perhaps the sentiments of all those listed can be summed up by the following:

A family history is an organization of the records of many people and, as such, deserves the cooperation of all family members wherever they may be. Each person living today is the sum total of his progenitors. He is not all Work, all Hamilton, all Steele, all anything. This Work family is only a small part of your extensive heritage. Be proud of the ancestors recorded in this book, but remember that many others, as your pedigree charts will prove, have had a part in bringing you to the kind of person you are today.

You may have Great Grandmother Work's eyes and Great Aunt Tillie's patience, or some other outstanding trait that can be attributed to this part of your lineage, yet the unknown lineages await your interest and discovery. Complete your pedigree chart as far back as you can on your other lines. Enter the information you have, work with other family members to gather the necessary dates and places, names and data needed to extend your pedigree. What greater incentive can you give your children to live useful lives than a personal knowledge of their forebears and their own heritage?

There are few famous men or women recorded here. Some have distinguished themselves admirably in their chosen field, yet none of their names have become household words. It is a collection of people who have always seemed to know the value of a good education, the wisdom of thrift, the tenets of hard work and of sacrifice for others, and the comfort of God's love.

When I began research in 1962, I knew very little about any of my own or my husband's progenitors and even less about research procedure. Now, a number of years later, after countless hours of study, some teaching, much researching and compiling, I am in a position to aid others with their research problems.

I make no excuses for this volume. I have written over 6000 letters to nearly 2600 people, made numerous long distance calls, burned much "midnight oil", and spent an unbelievable amount of cash. In the process, I have tried my husband's patience more than once. I'm positive there were times he could have cheerfully set fire to the vast accumulation of papers, files, notes, photos, etc. and then gleefully tossed my endlessly clattering typewriter over the nearest hill. I realize I owe him a vote of thanks for his admirable restraint.

It is strange to note that only three people (sisters) asked that their names be deleted from the book. No valid reason was offered. It was impossible to remove their names completely without making that removal an obvious omission and making it appear as if they were illegitimate children or did not belong to their parents. To save embarrassment to other members of their family, I have simply allowed the record to terminate with them, as in the cases where I had no current address to work with or letters were unanswered, and have made no effort to complete what I already had concerning them. Unfortunately, this automatically eliminates the material pertaining to their children and their grandchildren.

For the many Work descendants involved in the compilation of this volume, perhaps the statistics below may be of interest:

Of the 2000 families recorded in the book, perhaps 1800 may be classed as living families . . .

Approximately 450 of these families are still located in the Indiana and Punxsutawney, Pa. dialing area . . .

Another 600 families are scattered throughout Pa. . . .

Pioneers William and John alone have nearly 800 families listed as their descendants . . .

Some 150 families reside in New York State . . .

Some 150 families reside in California . . .

Some 150 families reside in Ohio . . .

50 in the Washington-Oregon area, 45 in Colorado, 40 in Nebraska, 30 in Canada. In fact, all but four states are represented by at least a few of the Work family descendants.

France, England, Scotland, Africa, Brazil, Peru, Turkey, Egypt, Ethiopia, Alaska, Spain, Hawaii, India, the Bahamas and many other exotic lands have lured the sons and daughters of the Works to service for their country, a number to serve as missionaries for their various churches.

May I apologize if I have erred or offended. It must be remembered that a compiler is just THAT. Gatherer, tabulator, indexer, endeavoring to put into some sort of workable order the material accumulated during the course of research from hundreds of different and sometimes wholly unreliable sources. If letters were unanswered, and sometimes as many as four and five follow-ups were sent, then the information requested would naturally not appear in the finished work. This is especially true if no other source or current address was available to me. It should be most obvious to those who use this book that I did not consult original records and use primary sources in most cases for the information on living families. The material is recorded as I received it. This is why an alternative date or place or name may appear at times. Then, too, the compiler can only enter into the record the information as it is submitted. If it is in error, then the compiler is in error unwittingly. I pray that the typing errors are not too numerous, but the new typewriter made just as many mistakes as the old one.

All in all, I have carefully checked and rechecked details and tried to leave no stone unturned. I wanted to make the book as complete and accurate as possible. The research that can be done is, of course, endless and there had to be a cut off point, a time beyond which I would not go. The end result is in your hand.

I have had the opportunity to correspond with a number of wonderful octogenarians, some of them willingly threw themselves into my chosen task and helped me immeasurably. Many others have shared addresses, encouragement, leads and just plain friendship with me and to each of them I want to express my sincere appreciation.

To all who had any part in the compilation of this volume, to all who have sent along well wishes for the success of it, and have included me in their prayers, my eternal thanks and most kind regards. This book couldn't have been compiled without you.

It is impossible to write a history without building mental pictures of the people involved. Many old and valuable photos were entrusted to my care for use in the book. Perhaps the oldest original picture sent was from Ellen Hackman and was of John H. Work and his wife, Jane McCreery, on their wedding day in 1864. It was necessary to limit the number of photos used to keep the price within reason. I have, however, included a shot of myself and my husband, partly out of vanity and partly because I was so sure some of you were wondering what a "genealogical researcher" looked like.

I have been able to encompass 12 generations of Works, the largest share of them the Indiana County, Pennsylvania variety. I sincerely hope you enjoy the book, will let me hear your comments and feel you have received your money's worth. For myself--my cup truly runneth over.

A very special thank you to President David O. McKay, Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, for permission to use a portion of his April Conference address.

THE SCOTCH-IRISH

The migration of the Scotch families to Ulster plantation in Northern Ireland began about 1605, owing to the confiscation of the lands of the Earls of Tyrone and Tyrconnel, who had been falsely accused of plotting against the government of England. It was decided to people their sequestered and depopulated domain in the province of Ulster with Protestants from England and Scotland, and companies were organized for this purpose. The principal emigration, however, was from Scotland.

For several generations before this time, Scottish Presbyterians had acquired much strength and endured great persecutions. Southwestern Scotland became overwhelmingly Presbyterian and it was natural that the Ulster plantation beckoned them to a measure of liberty for they could see the shores of Ulster, in clear and sunny weather, across the narrow neck of ocean that separated the two countries.

Scotch people are made up of strains from the Irish, Pictish, Cymric, English and Scandinavians. Warring first among their own clans and then uniting against the English, when that nation endeavored to impose on them the English government and the English church, tended to make them a sturdy, strong, self-reliant people. During the reign of James VI, a number of Scotsmen were induced to settle in Ulster on land taken by the government from the Irish Catholic. In this way Northern England was freed from fear of a rather insurgent element on its borders and Northern Ireland was assured of an industrious class of settlers. These people were Presbyterians, farmers, tradesmen, weary of feuds and persecutions in Scotland and hoping for better conditions.

The forebears of these Scotch-Irish were the heroes of Bothwell Bridge and martyrs of Wigton and Galway. They moved in large numbers across the strait hoping there to find a measure of religious liberty and political freedom. A hardy, frugal, aggressive race, they, by 1641, numbered nearly 100,000 in their adopted land.

As early as 1635, some Scotch-Irish settlers attempted to leave Ireland for America in the Ship Eagle, but were compelled to put back owing to the difficulties of the voyage.

By the year 1660 they were deprived of the right to own ships and to engage in maritime trade. Commerce with the American colonies was prohibited and in 1665 laws were passed forbidding them to ship dairy products, their chief industry, to England, on the grounds that English trade suffered thereby. In 1696 a law was passed forbidding the importation of American goods into Ulster and in 1699 monstrous encumbrances destroyed their linen and woolen industries.

At last these Scotch settlers in the north of Ireland, when the avenues to the New World were opening up, began to think of other homes. Ireland was not the land of their ancestors, it was endeared to them by no traditions, and they sought to obtain in the wilderness of Pennsylvania a better home than they had in the Old World.

Consequently, the Scotch families began migrating to America. Some were exiled, others escaped with a sentence on their heads. Coming thus to America by the thousands, their ministers either accompanied them or followed shortly after.

Donegal, Paxtang, Derry, Hanover, Octoraro, some of the eastern Pennsylvania settlements all within a radius of twenty five miles of one another, was the great settlement from whence the stream flowed southward through the Virginia Valley into Carolina and Georgia. Another stream began to flow westward through the Cumberland Valley to the banks of the Ohio.

As a result of their experience in Ulster, they were naturally unfavorable to English rule in America. As early as possible, they began to agitate a separation from England. They were bitterly assailed for their stand for all organized churches, except the Presbyterians and Separatists (Congregationalists), were loud and lavish in their loyalty to the King. The Presbyterians were, almost to a man, ardent Whigs and soldiers in the Revolutionary cause.

Wherever the Scotch-Irish went they took their loyalty to the family, reverence for God, devotion to the church, respect for law and just government, faith in education and moral training and bravery in action. They risked much to lay the foundation of the liberal government which we now enjoy. They knew the importanee of church and school.

As was said of one Alexander Work, who came from Ulster and settled in Dadsburg twp, Lancaster Co., Pa., "Came with family and relatives sternly leaving behind him oppression both civil and religious. Turning with hardy thrift and Scotch determination and aggressiveness to find a new home surrounded by liberty and freedom.

ORIGIN OF THE NAME

Confirmation of the surname WORK as meaning makers and keepers of fortifications is found in the history of the WORK family in the Orkney Islands, that cluster of 67 islands lying six miles off the northern coast of Scotland.

Early Viking pirates, leaving their homes in Norway in the 8th century because of a paucity of food and a yearning for the riches of other lands, captured the Orkneys from the Picts (the painted men) and made these islands headquarters for the Viking fleets and their buccaneering expeditions against the coasts of Scotland. The islands remained under Norse rule until 1468 when they, along with the Shetland Islands, were assigned to James III of Scotland and passed to the Scottish crown, as a part of the dowry—which was never paid—of his wife, Margaret of Norway. Not until 1590, however, when James VI married Anne of Norway, did Norway renounce all claims to sovereignty over the islands. The inhabitants of these northern islands have always prided themselves on their Scandinavian origin, stoutly refusing to call themselves Scots, speaking a dialect of English with an infusion of Norse, and to this date retaining many manners and customs alien to Scotland.

The surname WORK is quite common in the Orkneys, and to a lesser degree in the Shetlands. Kirkwall is the capital of the Orkneys, on the island of Pomona—"the Mainland." The main vantage point from which ships approaching Kirkwall Bay can be sighted first is the Head of Work, a long, bleak, headland or promontory on Pomona. On this headland, during the Viking occupation of the Orkneys were the main defenses protecting the Viking fleet anchorage in Kirkwall Bay. These Viking defenses were by family tradition built and maintained by the WORKS. Although the headland itself is now a part of the estates of the Lord Lieutenant of the Orkney and Shetland Islands, the adjoining land is still owned by the WORKS. Across Kirkwall Bay from this headland is the island of Shapinsay, where the WORKS have lived for hundreds of years. Nearby are the sheltered waters of Scapa Flow, the chief base of the British Fleet during the first World War. There, the majority of that portion of the German Navy which surrendered to the Allies at the Armistice, 10 battleships, 14 cruisers, 50 destroyers, was scuttled by the Germans. There, also during World War II, a German U-Boat sank the British battleship, H.M.S. Royal Oak, with a loss of 800 men.

The first mention of the WORK family in the Orkneys has been found in the petition of MARY WORK to the Pope, circa 1400, asking leave to presume the death of her husband, MAGNUS WORK, (a common family name on into the 20th century) lost at sea, and requesting permission to remarry. Although agriculture and fishing are now the island's main occupations, the WORKS have always been sailors, and the present generations of this family are largely seafarers.

The Scotch spelling of Work is Wark. Wark Castle was located on the southwestern coast of Scotland on the Solway Firth. The town of Workington is shown there on the map to this day. Both Scotland and England claim it and there was always a JOHN of WARK to bravely defend it. The eldest son of the EARL of WARK was always named John. There is a story that England once sent an army to destroy WARK and add the territory to England. About this time the Earl of Warwick was busy with petty wars, and he was in a hurry to dispose of the rough Scotch clan. So the commander rode out and dared the JOHN of WARK to fight it out single handed and save time and blood. This John was a mighty man of prodigious strength and skill. He promptly accepted and the bloody corpse of his enemy was carried from the field by his retainers.

During the 16th and 17th centuries the Orkneys, by then a part of Scotland, came under the control of the Stuarts. The majority of the Orkney landowners were dispossessed of their lands in favor of the Stuart courtiers. Balfour Castle, on the island of Shapinsay, has a coat of arms above one of the doorways which by family tradition was the original WORK coat of arms, adopted by the Balfours when they arrived on the island as Stuart donees. Heavy emigration from the Orkneys to the mainland of Scotland took place in the 17th century. With the union of the Scotch and English crowns in 1658, however, this ceased. Further emigration occurred in the middle of the 18th century, when many Orcadians (as the inhabitants of the Orkneys are called) emigrated to Canada and the United States.

In a letter from William Work, Holland Farms, Shonsay, Orkney Islands, dated 26 October 1968 to the compiler:

". . . The name is quite common in Orkney, especially on one island called Shapinsay. In fact it seems to me that the most of them have hailed from there as I myself did . . . My forebears were Shapinsay people and my father said that in the middle of the last century there were four clans of Works on the island who claimed no blood relationship with each other. The entire population at that time would only be about 8 or 9 hundred, the island is only 7 miles long and 4 miles broad so it may be that your group may have sprung up from there a century or more earlier. There is only the one clan there now but not many of them have emigrated or traveled far.

As you have seen by maps no doubt our group of islands lies to the north of Scotland and we have regular communications with the mainland by steamer and airservice every week-day. Our islands industry is mainly agriculture, raising and feeding cattle and sheep for supplying the towns in Scotland and England. Climate is moderate, never have extremes, little snow but heavy rainfall some seasons and could do with more sunshine . . . "

This chapter, with the exception of the William Work letter, was gleaned from a number of sources by Colin James, of Denver, Colo.,

LEGENDS AND TRADITIONS

This material is a chapter unto itself for legends and traditions cannot be entered into a history as fact. We like to think we are descended from kings and queens, the rich and the titled. It is well to remember that new colonies sprang up not from the cream of society as much as from the middle class. The desperately poor lacked the gumption, foresight and spirit of adventure required to make the move from the old world to the new. Halfway between the royal and the poor lay a sturdy, self-reliant group of people, used to making their own way and their own opportunities. It is from these that our emigrant ancestors came.

Armed with the barest essentials of tools, clothing and other supplies they made their hazardous journeys across rough and very treacherous seas to unknown hardships. Were some of them idealists or were some of them thieves? Were some of them running from unpaid debts or were some of them exiled for a variety of reasons? Were they religious or not? Many must surely have had backgrounds that would have made them less than desirable as progenitors but we must not be ashamed of them for they brought with them that inner strength that the searchers and prospectors, the seekers and doers seem to have in great abundance. No matter what their difficulties may have been, they exchanged that set of problems for the set that included hacking out their homes from the wilderness that became the American colonies.

It is said that the Clan of Work (or Wark) was a small one and noted for the fierceness of its warriors. It is recorded that a John always headed the clan and the oldest son was traditionally named John. A number of old letters, none of which the writer has seen in the original, are said to exist setting down the following bits and scraps of evidence to support the various claims. These are LEGENDS AND TRADITIONS. No documentation supports them.

JOHN of WARK (one of them) was a fierce warrior and hated the English, and in all the border warfare, his sword was always unsheathed against the enemy. When Charles I was fighting for his kingdom, he depended to a certain extent on the friendship and help of JOHN of WARK. At the crucial moment, John abandoned him and went over to the forces of Cromwell. Other Scottish chiefs followed and, as we know, it became a rout. Charles was taken and afterwards beheaded. And no one rejoiced more at the misfortune of Charles than JOHN of WARK. Later, when Charles II ascended the throne of his father, he made war on the doughty John and drove him out of his castle into Ireland. He may have gone to County Antrim. I heard some sort of a story about Antrim in my boyhood days. (From a letter written by Richard Reid Work in the early 1920's).

. . . We hear from Henry C. Work (the famous songwriter) of Hartford, Conn., who had a history of the family, that: five brothers left North Ireland in 1660 and settled in Scotland and lived there until 1690, removing to Belgium for two years, then sailing to the United States in 1692, landing on the Jersey coast. They came in their own ships: three of the brothers moved to Pa., one to New York and one to Boston, Mass.

The names of the five brothers are: John, William, Henry, Alexander, and Andrew. They were robbed by pirates on the Atlantic and saved parts of their things by hiding them in the water cooler . . . (From a letter dated 11 January 1900, Hot Springs, Arkansas, written by a W. E. Work to an attorney, W. A. Work of Ottumwa, Iowa).

It is not known if all their families were with them or if some remained either in Holland, Scotland, or Ireland. It is believed by some that they migrated as a Clan. Perhaps this was accomplished over a period of years.

Richard Reid Work claimed to be the last of the direct line of the House of Wark of Scotland. It is interesting to note that while Richard Reid Work and W. E. Work do not entirely agree on their stories, they were third cousins, both descendants of John and Anna (Reid) Work whose children and their families are chronicled later in the book.

Richard Reid Work tells us that his ancestor, JOHN of WORK, left Lancaster County, Pa., in 1798 and settled on 3000 acres in Indiana. Richard is indeed a descendant of Tunnel Mill John whose colorful history and descendants appear here also.

Another descendant of John and Anna (Reid) Work, William Work Carithers of Morning Sun, Iowa, shows only three brothers as the emigrants and carries the lineage back three more generations past the Henry Work, the common ancestor of this volume. Henry C. Work of Hartford, Conn. is once again given the credit for the information. Mr. Carither's record related that the brothers came in a chartered vessel, making the voyage about 1720. These men also had an experience with pirates, saving a hatful of English shillings by hiding them in a water cask. They are thought to have landed on the coast of Maine.

The following, sent by Colin James of Denver, Colo., is a listing of what he believes to be the original five emigrants and their eventual homesites. This book is mainly concerned with Henry and John although descendants of some other Works will be recorded in the hope that further evidence may come to light and additional information and necessary corrections will be submitted to straighten out any discrepancies and show positive connections.

JOHN WORK – settled in Lancaster County, Pa. and it is believed some of his descendants migrated into Indiana.

WILLIAM WORK – there is evidence of him living in West Chester County, Pa. and of being married to a German lady.

HENRY WORK – the common ancestor of the majority of the families recorded in this book. He lived in Lancaster County, Pa. More of him in the next chapter.

ALEXANDER WORK – in New York State and father of Asa Work, whose daughter, Miriam, married 8 October 1824, to Brigham Young, a leader of the Mormon Church. She was born 1806 at Aurelius, Cayuga County, New York. She died September 1832 leaving two girls, Elizabeth and Vilate.

ANDREW WORK – is thought to have been the one migrated to Boston.

It is important to remember that none of this is supported by factual evidence. There are no documents, bible records, original records of any kind to prove these traditions. It is obvious the three stories, with their many similarities, could have originated at the same source. Over the years the tale, passed from father to son, could have been embellished, changed slightly and none can say which to accept and which to reject. No definite connection has been made to either the last generation in Scotland or the first generation in America. –vgh–

Another brief version, once again contributed from the correspondence of Richard Reid Work reads in part: "John of Work was banished from Scotland by Charles II, went to County Antrim, Ireland, in 1650, after 40 years stay, went to Holland (reign of William). In 1692 he sailed for New York, landed at Philadelphia with a load of Dutch emigrants. The name Wark was then softened to Work or Warrick."

In a letter from Emmett Alexander Work–Ottumwa, Iowa and dated 8 April 1948: (probably written to Luvia Musladin)

ANDREW WORK family from England about 1680. Landed in Rhode Island. Removed to Indiana Co., Pa. Eight sons. One to Tennessee, one to Jackson, Miss, some to Maryland. John Work, one of the eight to Madison Co., Ind. about 14 miles from Louisville, Ky. Dr. Work, Charleston, 1919, a descendant. Joseph Work, Judge had Joseph and Samuel who went to Iowa 1843. Joseph had William Alexander Work, attorney, of Birmingham, Iowa. Born 1844. William had Emmett Alexander Work, attorney, who became the father of Jordan Work, another attorney of Ottumwa, Iowa.

HENRY WORK–EMIGRANT ANCESTOR

I would like to be able to record here a great deal about Henry Work. Unfortunately very little is known about him. We will assign Henry the number 1. Reference to the list of abbreviations and explanation of the format will let you take it from there.

If Henry was born about 1680, as the record I have from Mr. Colin James states, he was about 12 years old when he came to the American shores. It is reasonable to assume then that his four brothers listed on the previous few pages were either a few years younger or a few years older than Henry.

If this is the case and they were indeed children (brothers) rather than young men (brothers), it is impossible not to assume that they were not the five brothers who left North Ireland in 1650 or 1660. During a period of thirty-two or forty-two years, assuming they did indeed arrive in 1692, we must deduce that all five would probably not have survived that long.

This deduction gives some credence to the story told us by William Work Carithers and lends itself in part to the other traditions and legends. Also explains the difference in the names of the brothers from the different sources.

(William) McClean Work of Pittsburgh, Pa. stated that about 1930 a Mr. Godcharles, Pennsylvania State Librarian, disclosed the following: By horseback, Henry and his brother(s) went to Vermont to look at land owned by the Witherspoon who was sometime President of Princeton but didn't buy. That the brothers also went to North Carolina but were still not satisfied. They then settled in Lancaster County, Pa. (We do not know what prompted these journeys. Works did reside in both areas at the time. It is also possible the entire Clan was banished, from that part of Scotland previously held by the Work family, into Ulster and they emigrated to the American colonies at various times during the ensuing forty or fifty years. All, or none, of the foregoing chapter could apply to the subject of this chapter. –vgh–)

We can see on the preceding pages of traditions how much the material has suffered in the past 150 odd years since Henry Clay Work is supposed to have written his record and perhaps access to an original copy would clarify this problem.

1 HENRY WORK – b abt 1680; d abt 1738–Lancaster County, Pa.; held a warrant (155) for 200 acres in Bart twp. Middle Octoraro Church in Bart twp (organized 1720) built on a tract conveyed to Henry Work et al by the Penns on 29 June 1738. It is still in possession of the Presbyterian Congregation except for 6 acres sold to the United Presbyterian congregation upon which stands their church and parsonage. Close by is the graveyard where some of the original settlers are buried. He had children:

2 i. William Work - d July 1766 - wife Elizabeth
3 ii. Rebecca Work - md Robert Galbraith

Martha Work's will was proved in 1754. John Sterrett's will shows a wife, Martha, a grandchild named Young, a brother-in-law named Andrew Work to whom he left his best hat and wig. John was another of the Scotch-Irish and the pioneer settler of the name located in Donegal twp in 1720. Children:

19	i.	Joseph Work	- md Sarah Cooke
20 +	ii.	James Work	- md Janet Galbraith
21	iii.	Abraham Work	- died intestate before 1764
22	iv.	Patrick Work	- served in the Virginia Blues under George Washington and in the Pa. Provincials as a Col. of Third Btln.
23	v.	William Work	-
24	vi.	Mary Work	- md William Shaw (or James Shaw) of Fincastle Co., Va.

Joseph Work owned 500 acres along the Big Chickie and was listed as "of Donegal twp, Lancaster County, Pa." He died intestate before 28 February 1743. Joseph, the eldest child, received 2/7 of the estate and later sold it to his mother. He was listed as a tanner. Abraham's 1/7 was sold to Samuel Scott. Patrick sold his to his two brothers, James and William. William, in turn, sold his to James. The land had been patented by the father in 1738. Mary Shaw also sold her land to her brother, James Work. A note of interest concerning Joseph's wife, Sarah Cooke, tells she was the d/o Jacob and Rosetta (Hall) Cooke. Joseph and Sarah's daughter, Sarah, md Samuel Scott Galbraith. An uncited note says Sarah d 20 March 1833 at age 63. Joseph (the younger) was a Captain in Flying Camp in 1776, was in Col. Lowry's Btln at Battle of Brandywine. He was also the Sheriff of Lancaster County 1779-81, member of Assembly 1783-88. Another note mentions: Patrick and William and possible estates in right of their military service in time of former wars in the Virginia area or elsewhere. Their brother, James, is shown as their only heir.

6 ALEXANDER WORK – s/o HENRY WORK (1); b abt 1702–of Bart twp, Lancaster County, Pa.; d 17 March 1749–Lancaster County; buried in the graveyard of Middle Octoraro Church; md MIRIAM MC NUTE (or McNutt)

Alexander Work lived and died in Lancaster Co. His son, Alexander was unnamed and unbaptized at the time of his will. The will was made 17 Mar 1748 and proved in 1749. A stepdaughter, Elizabeth McNute, b 1720, is also mentioned, giving rise to speculation as to a possible maiden name different from McNute as listed for the wife Miriam. One note sent to me said her name was Sterrett. I have no verification for this, however. Children:

25	i.	Henry Work	- b abt 1730 - received 5 pounds from his grandfather Henry.
26 +	ii.	James Work	- b abt 1732

35 +	iv.	John Work	- b abt 1738
36 +	v.	Henry Work	- b 10 Dec 1746; (md 42)

Andrew Work bought 170 acres from John Kyll and wife; was sheriff of Lancaster County, Pa. 1749-1750; Justice of the Peace 1764; was a Captain in the Associated Companies of Lancaster County, Pa. 1756; held a patent for 475 acres described below. There is some conjecture that there may have been another son, George, b 1759. I am inclined to doubt this and have listed his families in the miscellaneous section, awaiting proof of a connection. There may also have been another son named William.

Thomas and Richard Penn, by patent dated 11 August 1752, granted to Andrew Work the land on which stands the house shown here. There were 475 acres in the original grant. A photocopy of it was with some material submitted by Mrs. Spencer O. Todt. It is interesting to see the signature of Andrew as he conveyed the property to his sons shortly before his death. Tradition is that John and Henry built the stone house.

Present owner of the house and farm is Marion Krebs, assistant postmaster in Mercersburg, and his wife, Helen, by two purchases, one in 1946 and one in 1952 reunited two of the several parts of the tract originally granted . . . In the years since the original grant, the tract was divided and subdivided into unnumbered separate ownerships. Of these Mr. Krebs and his wife now hold 185 acres . . . (Henry V. Black).

James Work moved beyond the river to the Cumberland Valley of Pa. where he married and lived and owned land. He was taxed in Cumberland County for 100 acres in Hopewell twp, 1760-63, Newton twp, 1767-82. His widow was taxed in Newton twp, 1785. The widow and children were shown as members of Big Spring Presbyterian Church at Newville, Pa. in 1785. The entry in Swope's history of that church has been misread previously and it has been thought that two persons listed as S. Work appeared in the record. This has been proven to be the names of Letitia (Scott) Work and her daughter, Letitia. The L was picked up as an S. It is evident, however, that it is an entire listing of the above family shortly after the death of the father and husband, James Work.

For the pleasure of those who have been unable to see a copy of THE WORK FAMILY HISTORY printed in 1894, I have included some of the text. The following is the introduction:

"It would be difficult to find a region of rarer beauty than that which lies between the Cumberland Valley and the Allegheny river. A hundred years ago (now 175 years—vgh) its hills and mountains were clothed with forests. Through their shadows around their rocky foundations stole the waters of 'the blue Juniata'. Paths worn by the moccasin of the Tuscarora and the Delaware began to be trodden by the adventurous pioneer. In the rich limestone vallies, the gray eagle heard the echo of the woodman's axe, and the skulking wolf saw the smoke of the settler's cabin. The restless spirit that had dared the unfriendly sea was pushing its way westward. Up to the time of the Revolution, the population of the new world was massed on the Atlantic slope. That event seemed to widen the seas that separated us from the mother country, and the spirit of daring, fostered by the war, enabled our fathers to face the perils and hardships of the forest. With a courage born of success, they turned from the fields of a vanquished foe to the no less difficult and dangerous task of carving out States and making the wilderness a fruitful field. There must have been a curiosity, too, to survey the vast domain which had now become peculilarly their own.

Three streams—The Puritan of New England, the Scotch-Irish of Pennsylvania, and the Hugenot of the South—were commingled as they flowed westward, producing a generation of unequalled enterprise in all the arts of war and peace. Without recoil or pause, the column of civilization advanced from Jamestown and Plymouth Rock to where Tacoma and Hood and Shasta look out on the Pacific—the silent sentries of the western sea.

The men of that day were well endowed for their work. Perhaps they would not in every particular suffer in comparison with those of our own time. If they had less polish, they had more power; with scantier libraries, they loved more dearly the one book; if they heard fewer sermons, they listened with greater reverence; their lives were simpler, their characters sturdier. When other voices were hushed, the witness of the great silent heavens was above them. God spoke to them in the laughter of the river and the sigh of the forest. The sunshine of His smile kissed the flowers in their humble gardens. The trees of the forest writhed and crashed before the tempest of His frown. The book of nature lay open to them. Men of thought, they were pre-eminently men of action. They lived not in the dead past or the unborn future, but in the pulsing present. They were neither historians nor prophets, they made history and fulfilled prophecy.

Among the conspicuous factors of that early civilization was the pioneer preacher. Daring wild beasts and savage men, these apostolic heroes crossed trackless mountains and bridgeless streams to tell the evangel of hope in grove or tent or cabin. Scarcely less influential was the schoolmaster. The rude log structure with its earthen floor and its paper windows was the birth-place of power. Here the makers of a nation first felt within their souls the stir of their destiny. These humble schools were greater than universities. They were at once the product and the heritage of the common people. To this estate the family here chronicled belongs. Neither wealth nor abject poverty has been theirs. No great man has sprung from this stock. They dwell among their own people. But in the hour of our country's alarm, the sons of this line poured out their blood at the foot of the altar. In the obscure but important duties of citizenship they have not been without honor. May we not hope that no one who bears the name of those whose brief and simple annals are here told may ever tarnish this record inherited from an honest ancestry. (dated 14 Dec 1894, at Norfolk, Virginia—name of the writer not recorded)

Henry Work and his brother, John, came from Lancaster County, Pa. to Franklin County while it was still undivided from Cumberland County, to that part of Peters twp which later became Montgomery twp. He and John were on the original tax list for Cumberland County, 1772, as free men (at least age 21). In 1772 Henry paid taxes on 46 acres, in 1779 on 200 acres and 200 slaves. In 1781, 2, 3 he and John each paid on 337 acres in Montgomery twp. Henry served under Capt. Wm. Huston 1780-81, was elected Sheriff of Franklin County, Pa. in 1790 and served until 1793. Later he was in charge of the Post Office at Chambersburg and County Commissioner 1796-98. His will is filed in Chambersburg and had a total of 1417 acres in Kentucky from two land grants dated 1786 and 1798 which were bequeathed to his son, Samuel. Henry's will shows the first four children pre-deceased him.

The following sketch begins a family the compiler believes should be included at this point, thoroughly convinced that he is not only a contemporary of those included in this chapter but was probably related. It is from this line that the bulk of the traditions and legends have sprung. The similarity of given names, has led to the firm conclusion that although he may be a generation out of place either way, he does indeed belong here. He could be the nephew of Henry Work (1) or perhaps a great nephew. In any case, these are the Works who removed to Indiana and their history can only add to the interest of the book. I sincerely hope I have not erred in placing this family in this position and will give the information as I received it from William Work Carithers of Morning Sun, Iowa.–vgh–

I–Henry Work–known as Henry, Earl of Wark
II–Joseph Work
III–Alexander Work
IV–John Work
IV–Joseph Work
IV–Alexander

These three brothers are said to have chartered a sailing vessel from Northern Ireland and came to America about 1720. They were captured by pirates, robbed of everything except a hatful of English shillings, hid in a water cask. They retained their vessel, had a very dangerous voyage, and landed on the coast of Maine. (Henry Clay Work).

V–John Work–for many years sheriff of Lancaster County, Pa.

Henry Clay Work claimed to be a descendant of these three brothers, John, Joseph and Alexander. John, s/o one brother, will be assigned the number 37 and his family will be recorded in the same manner as the others.–vgh–

37 JOHN WORK – s/o JOHN; born Lancaster Co.; Pa.; md ANNA REID who was b 1734 and d 1824 (ae 90). She died at the home of her son, John, at the mill on 14 Mile Creek. Children: b Lancaster County.

84 +	ii.	John Work	- 9 Dec 1760
85	iii.	William Work	- went to Virginia. Son William joined his Uncle John for a time in Indiana.

86 iv. Joseph Work - went to Texas or Illinois and is recorded here as the father of Henry Clay Work, the famous songwriter. Be sure to check in the Appendix for those who are descendants of Joseph Work who d 1760 and lived his life in Eastford, Conn. -vgh-

He was one of the first Justices of the Peace of Mahoning twp, and one of the first Elders in Gilgal Presbyterian Church. He was found dead in the woods near his home. He had accompanied John Brady to see him across the creek, below Richmond, and, as was the custom, took his gun and dog along. He failed to return and was found by the barking of his faithful dog. His life was a quiet and peaceful one. A letter from William and Miriam, his brother and sister-in-law, written several months after John's death tells almost the same story. It was written to their brother, James, who resided at Greenspring. The letter was not sent until September of the same year for it was necessary to employ someone going in the same direction to deliver the letter for you.

Mary Brady's father was nicknamed "Uncle Sam" to distinguish him from his namesake nephew, "Fighting Sam, chief of the Rangers." He was a man of large physique and had a jovial, genial disposition and was a striking figure in his military career. Starting out in his 21st year as a soldier he served as a private in the ranks until white-haired old age drove him from camp. For fifty years he took part in every military movement that presented itself for the defense of his home and country. His parents were Hugh Brady and Hannah McCormick, a Scots woman, and they had emigrated from Ireland and made their home in Cumberland County in 1732 where Hugh was a surveyor. Samuel was b 1734 d 1811 and made his home with John and Mary. Jane Simonton was the daughter of Robert.

"It is hard for us in the latter part of the nineteenth century to realize what must have been the conditions of life in Western Pa. in the early days of the Republic. The heavy forests had been broken here and there by clearings and towns. The original inhabitants of the woods had been either subdued or pushed farther west, and the pioneers of civilization were striving to form homes for themselves in the wilderness.

Among these early settlers was William Work who was born of Scotch-Irish parents. He was one of a large family of brothers and sisters whose home was in Cumberland County.

Although the early part of his life is shrouded in obscurity, yet from his after history we know that as a boy he must have been earnest and diligent in the acquisition of knowledge making the most of the meager opportunities afforded him for obtaining an education. He must have been a young man at the close of the Revolutionary War, but we do not learn that he took any part in the struggle.

. . . (Miriam, William's wife, was) Strong in body and strong in spirit, she was in every way a suitable wife for a pioneer. Amidst the hardships and vicissitudes of a settler's life, she reared her children and performed her household duties with scrupulous care. Her influence over her children was such that even when aged and hoary headed, they spoke reverently and tenderly of 'mother'.

In the year 1799 William Work, with his brother John, removed from Cumberland County to the foot of Squirrel Hill in Westmoreland Co, near the present site of New Florence. Leaving this place in 1804, they came into the northern part of Indiana County, where William settled on the tract afterwards occupied by Moses T. and Elijah I. Work, while his brother settled on a neighboring tract.

Living so far from the towns, the barest comforts of life could be obtained; luxuries were out of the question. It is said, however, that Miriam Work used to make sugar enough to last the family for a whole year from the sugar tree that grew beside their home. To obtain flour necessitated a journey of three days to Roger's Mill, on the other side of Indiana. When the husband and father was too busy to leave home, Miriam would undertake the trip herself, taking two horses laden with grain, on one of which she sat with the baby, while on the other was placed one of the older children to guide the beast. Their road was but a bridle-path through dense forests inhabited by wolves, bears and panthers, but no harm ever befell the pioneer or his family from these denizens of the forest.

For many years William Work was a teacher, in fact he was perhaps the first teacher in all the Mahoning country. When not occupied in a more public manner, he taught his own children. His son, Aaron, used to relate that his father could make shoes and teach at the same time, and that when he wanted to drive a peg, he would reach up and split a little piece from the rafter, while continuing his instruction.

The first school north of the 'Purchase Line' was erected near the home of William Work in the year 1807. It was built by the united efforts of the pioneer and his neighbors . . . The chimney was a square affair going up on the outside. Not only did our pioneer teach the young people of his neighborhood how to read, write and 'cipher', but he taught them how to sing. Even before his marriage he was known as a singing master in Cumberland County. Who knows if his songs, and perhaps serenades, did not assist him greatly in courting his

BALLAD OF MIRIAM SCROGGS

I sing a song of Miriam Scroggs,
Who bore and reared fourteen;
Her home a hut of unhew logs
Tho cozy, neat and clean.

A likely girl, ambitious too,
Much younger than her tutor,
Who passing poor, aspired to woo,
And soon became her suitor.

"It will not do!" her parents said,
"We firmly tell you nay!"
But Miriam tossed her wilful head,
And, well, - she ran away.

Bravely they cleared the trackless woods
And reared a cabin humble
With love, health, industry for goods,
What room was there to grumble?

Soon ax-hewn crib and trundle-bed
Were needed in that haven,
And how all grew to man's estate,
He knows, Who feeds the raven!

Eight stalwart sons, six daughters tall
Filled home from floor to rafter;
And dauntless Miriam kept them all,
And bathed their souls with laughter.

And William's hardened toilworn hands
Were never known to falter,
As little voices, led by his Conned the familiar Psalter.

'Tis homes like this that build a State;
Such Miriams and Williams
Do more to make a nation great
Than all our boasted millions.

- Ella Work Bailar -
(daughter of Josiah Work)

Miriam? Of one thing we are certain: his love of music and gift of song have descended to his posterity.

Little is known of his position in regards to politics. He was doubtless a Whig and a believer in reforms. But one of the chief features of William Work's life was his strong religious character. He was one of the first members of Gilgal Church and among those instrumental in obtaining its organization. It was not till the year 1810 that the first church building was erected, and this was a very primitive affair built of logs. Here William Work worshipped until about the year 1818, when, on account of doctrinal differences, he and many others withdrew from Gilgal and joined those who afterwards obtained the organization of the Associate Church of Mahoning. It is related that here, on more than one occasion, William Work with his wife and their fourteen children, sat down together at the table of the Lord.

Comparatively little is known of the declining years of this good man's life, but his last days were clouded with suffering, for he died of cancer in the year 1828. Strong in the faith that is in Christ Jesus, he passed away from earth to his eternal reward . . . "

The foregoing was extracted from THE WORK FAMILY HISTORY (1894). An additional note of interest that was brought out at the 1894 reunion of the Work family was that about 60 of the descendants of William Work had followed the teaching profession. Now, in 1969, the number has increased greatly and many of those who are not already teaching are studying for or planning to study for the teaching profession.

Only one of William Work's children did not marry and have a family. This is the sketch that appeared in THE WORK FAMILY HISTORY (1894) concerning her: "Mary Work . . . spent her life on the old homestead living with her brother, Elijah. She assisted many of the family in their work and lives, going when and where duty called, although never very strong. She had a quiet, pleasant manner which attracted many to her. Like all this family, she lived a true christian life, and while not a long one, yet her life was not measured by years. It was, by many kind deeds, a long life."

The descendants of this couple hold a great love and respect for the heritage they have. Several have written concerning them and I have included a lovely poem on the facing page. in tribute to the Pioneer Mother—Miriam Scroggs—by a great grand-daughter. A story of the Scroggs line will then be recorded for the numerous descendants. —vgh—

THE SCROGGS LINE

The material presented here comes from a small booklet compiled at the time of the 1919 reunion of the Work family and concerns the Scroggs side of the family. It will be of great interest to those readers who are descendants of William and Miriam (Scroggs) Work. Perhaps the largest part of this book is concerned with children of this couple. The talk was given by W. R. Thompson, D. D., also a child of the Scroggs line.

" . . . my paternal grandmother, Elizabeth Scroggs, who was the twentieth child of Alexander Scroggs in a family of twenty-one children, was a full sister of Miriam Scroggs, both daughters of Rachel Ireland, the second wife of Alexander Scroggs, who was the mother of eleven children, having married Alexander Scroggs in 1772. Grandmother Miriam was the second child of Rachel Ireland and was born in 1775, and my grandmother, Elizabeth Scroggs, was born in 1790 . . . Both of the wives of Alexander Scroggs bore the christian name Rachel . . . the first named wife being Rachel Leith. Likewise two of his daughters bore the name Rachel. In this large family there were also two daughters named Sarah. Four of the children of Rachel Ireland married persons by the name of Thompson and these, so far as I know, were not closely related. Moses married Margaret Thompson, Sarah (md) Alexander Thompson, Mary Ireland (md) Robert Thompson, and Elizabeth, my grandmother, and known to the nephews and nieces as 'Aunt Bettsy' married Hugh Thompson. Alexander Thompson, I am informed, was related to the author of the story of the Holy Land entitled 'The Land and The Book.'

I recall the opposition of Alexander Scroggs to the marriage of Miriam to William Work, and it is alleged because of the fact that he was not possessed of great wealth, but I have wondered whether or not he had his eye on a Thompson with an ambition to add another of that name to his family record, but be that as it may, the family is pretty strongly tinctured with the name Thompson.

In this connection, it might be of interest to note a legend, and (one) which is highly romantic, concerning the marriage of Sarah to Alexander Thompson. The legend is, that when Sarah, the 17th child of Alexander Scroggs, was a babe, Alexander Thompson, then a young man, called at the home of Grandfather Scroggs and when asked by Mr. Scroggs as to whether he had selected a wife, replied, 'I have decided to wait for Sarah' and to which the father of Sarah replied, 'All right, Alexander, you may have her.' The sequal (sic) was their marriage when Sarah grew to womanhood. We, however, suspect that Alexander went through the form of ardent courtship before he was able to claim the coy Sarah, unless she was vastly different from her democratic sister, Miriam, who defied the autocratic dictation of her father, in matters of heart, saying, 'The rich and poor meet together and the Lord is the maker of them all,' and so saying fled parental authority, uniting heart and hand with William Work.

At this junction, it would doubtless be of interest to narrate the legend concerning the origin of the name Scroggs, and which is in part supported by authentic history.

The story is that William Murray, afterward known as Sir Wm Murray, and his brother, James Murray, of the Scotch Clan of Murray (Moray), contested for the leadership of the Clan, in order to control the fortunes of the Clan. The dispute grew bitter and resulted in frequent battles to decide the question. After many bloody contests, in which many lives were lost, finally there was a decisive battle, in which the family of James was almost exterminated. This battle took place in a section where the ground was covered with underbrush—'scroggy' timber.

After this battle, when the followers of Wm. Murray were celebrating their hard earned victory, one of the most trusted followers of William Murray found a 'boy baby' hid under a bush—scrogg—wrapped in the tartan of the Murray clan, being found near the place of his brother, James, and it is alleged that when the follower suggested killing the child, Wm. Murray replied, 'Blood is thicker than water,' and carried the child away, and one account is that he called it James for his deceased brother, but refused to allow the child to bear the name Murray, calling it Scroggs. It is said the boy was apprenticed to a butcher and inherited his wealth, and this name James Scroggs of the Murray clan, clung to him through life.

The Murrays descended from a powerful Moravian chief, supposed at a remote period to have conquered a province called Murrayshire, in that part of Scotland. Their chiefs were men of power and influence in Scotland. In 1284 the head of the clan was appointed Baron of Tullebardine by King Alexander III, being possessed of large estates in County Perth, Scotland.

James Scroggs, the boy baby found under the bush, had one son, William, born 1623. William entered Oxford in about 1638 when at the age of 15, was admitted to 'Gray's Inn' in 1641, when he is described as Wm. Scroggs of Clifford, Essex, gentleman; was knighted soon after the Restoration; called to the bar in 1663 at the age of 30 years; Counsal (sic) to Sir. Wm. Penn 1668; became Justice of the Common Pleas 1676 and was elected to the position of Chief Justice of the King's Bench, 1678, presiding at the trials which resulted from what was known as the 'Popesh Plot' (sic). As a Judge, he was violently partisan, sometimes for the prisoner, sometimes against him, but always honest. He became unpopular with the Roman Catholics, because of his severity toward them, and alleged partisan spirit, and which resulted in impeachment proceeding being brought against him, by the Commons, but in this he was vindicated. He retired, however, soon after this, on a pension and died in 1683.

He was married to Ann Fultzplace, daughter of Edward Fultzplace. They had one son, Sir Wm. Scroggs, born in 1652, and died in 1695. He was twice married, first to Mary Churchill, who soon died without children. He was then united in marriage with Ann Black, of Herfordshire.

The children of Ann Black were Alexander, Allen, John, and James. These four sons, great grandchildren of the baby boy, James Scroggs, found under the bush, (scrogg) emigrated to America in 1743 and I have somehow received the impression that it was because of certain alleged persecution, due to the activity of the grandfather, against the Roman Catholics—and which attached to the name. Be that as it may, they came in that year, and located in the Cumberland Valley, Cumberland County, Pa., near Big Spring (now called Newville).

It is said they purchased their first land from John Penn, a son of William Penn, for whom the great Commonwealth of Pennsylvania received its name. Alexander and Allen remained in that section and many of their children moved westward. Both Alexander and Allen were active in the church work at Big Spring during their entire lives.

Allen, who married Mary Gibson, died in 1777. Two sons of their son, John, are practicing attorneys before the bar at Bucyrus, O.

John, the third brother, coming to the Cumberland Valley, married Sarah Carson, a step sister, and moved to Iredell County, North Carolina and his children are largely in the south. John died in 1743.

James, the youngest of the four sons of Sir William Scroggs, married Miss Jack and returned to Scotland. One son came to Kentucky, and his son, John, became a Seceder minister in New York State."

The family of Alexander Scroggs will be recorded more graphically here to make it easier to understand. He had 21 children by his two wives, Rachel Leith and Rachel Ireland, and lived to see them all to maturity before his death in 1796.

Children of the first Rachel:

James	– father of Rev. Joseph Scroggs who for over 50 years served the Fairfield congregation in Westmoreland Co., Pa.
Sarah
Alexander Jr.
Ebenezer	– who married at least twice, had descendants in Kentucky and Illinois (on a Pepper line) too numerous to record here.
Rachel	– 1756-30 Apr 1780; md John S. Stevenson
Margaret	– 1756-1780; md John Stevenson (It is not known if this is a record of one child or of twins)
Jeanette	– md Joseph McElwain
Ann	– md Hugh McElroy
Rawlin
one other

Children of the second Rachel:

Allen	– md 22 Sep 1795 to Margaret Craig md (2) Mary Porter. They resided Xenia, O.
Miriam	– b 30 June 1775 d 28 July 1850; md William Work (see 51)
General John Augustus	– 1776-1845; md (1) Isabel Walker in 1814 md (2) Ann White
Aaron	– 1778-1838; md Sarah White and they lived at Poland, O.
Moses	– 1780-1838; md Margaret Thompson 10 Dec 1807 and they resided in Des Moines, Iowa
Rachel	– b 1782; md William Connelly 20 Aug 1802. They resided Washington Co., Pa.
Sarah	– 1783-1855; md Alex Thompson; lived Whiteside Co., Ill.
Elijah	– 1786-1851; md Margaret Imbrie and was pastor of Calcutta, O., near East Liverpool, and the founder of Scroggsfield congregation.
Mary Ireland	– 1788-1845; md Robert Thompson and they lived Jefferson Co., Ohio
Tabitha Elizabeth	– 1790-1870; md Hugh Thompson; and they lived Jefferson Co., Ohio also.

". . . My grandparents, Hugh and Elizabeth Scroggs Thompson, left Cumberland County early in the century, about 1807, grandmother riding over the mountains, part of the journey behind grandfather on a small horse. They located in Smithfield twp, Jefferson County, Ohio. They did not enter the tract of land, but procured it by purchase. . . . There was a log house on the tract, and to this additions were made, and in 1832 a brick building was erected from brick which was burned on the farm. On this farm four institutions were established–The home, church, school and cemetery. Five sons were born in the home–John, Alexander Scroggs, Hugh, William Judkins, and Moses Scroggs, my father."

Some modern research is suggested to clarify and verify the Scroggs line. Too many of the foregoing dates and events are inconsistent. i.e. Alexander who d 1796 was the s/o Sir William Scroggs who d 1695. (making Alexander near 100 at the time of his death yet fathering half of his children in the previous 20 years) –vgh–

Very little information is available on Alexander Work and his wife, Elizabeth Shultz. Their birthdates were obtained from a bible owned by their late great-granddaughter, Mrs. Virginia Ross Lambert of Johnstown, Pa. From newspaper clippings also obtained from Mrs. Lambert, we learn that in 1836 Alexander Work moved his family from Moore's Mills, Huntingdon Co., Pa. to Clarion Co., Pa. The 1850 Census tells us the location of their home was Porter twp. From the Pennsylvania Archives we learn that Alexander owned 66 2/3 acres of land here.

We can trace Alexander Work in Clarion Co. through tax records until 1862. After this year, we can find nothing. It is assumed that he returned to the Huntingdon Co., Pa., area as this is where his children were located in later years. We have checked with the Courthouse in Clarion and cannot locate any records showing what happened to the land he owned there, but we are still trying to obtain this information. –Emma E. The following is an excerpt from a letter written by Richard Reid Work in the early 1930's and speaks of the mother of this family. "There is a striking resemblance between our women. The King of England heard of the wonderful hair of Sarah Jackson Work, wife of John, and he offered a reward of $25, through his agents Sinclair and Wolf, the 'Scalp buyers' of Canada, for her scalp. The picture of Col. John Coombs (her son-in-law) hangs on the wall over me as I write. He personally made 100 Indians out of that number who came to earn the reward. The men of the clan are all good shots to this day."

The story on the following pages is a marvelous example of Americana. I am using it verbatim as it was sent to me from several different sources and hope to retain the excellent flavor that was so apparent to me. Resourceful, daring, imaginative, these are some of the adjectives I would use to describe John Work and his life if I were the one to biograph him. I have chosen to let his descendants do it for me. The photograph of the old mill was sent for the history by Harlan C. Dodd just a few days before his death. Mr. Dodd was not a descendant. The property had been in his family for a time. —vgh—

TUNNEL MILL JOHN

INDIANA'S SILVER MINE

JOHN WORK'S PIONEER EFFORTS

TO LOCATE THE SOURCE OF ABORIGINAL WEALTH

A Tale of Buried Treasure That Keeps Credulous People on the Lookout

Extracts from Paper Read at the Old Settlers' Meeting, 6 August 1891
by Hon. H. F. Work

Indiana, like Kentucky, has a famous silver mine that has never been discovered. It has cost a good deal of money and enthusiasm in the search for it, but as it probably never existed, of course its location has remained a mystery, but one which people are still trying to solve. One of the first men to become affected by the silver-mine craze in Southern Indiana was John Work. Early in the year 1803 John and Henry Work, with their families, embarked on the Monongahela from their home at Red Stone, Pa., thirty miles above Pittsburg, for the settlement at the falls of the Ohio. The Works were iron workers in Pennsylvania, having furnaces and a foundry at Red Stone, and they loaded the flatboat which bore them on their journey with iron kettles, the greater portion of which was disposed of around the falls for salt kettles and for boiling down the sap of the sugar maple, and wash kettles. A portion, however, were retained and afterward sold to the settlers around Charlestown, many of which are yet in use in that vicinity. They built a temporary home at the mouth of Harrod's Creek, Kentucky. Not considering the location healthy, they crossed over into Indiana and bought a large tract of land, extending from what is known as Work's Landing on the Ohio River, across to Fourteen Mile Creek, and far up the creek, including the present site of the Tunnel Mill. Fourteen Mile Creek was particularly inviting to the Works on account of its water power.

Early in the spring of 1804, while they were preparing to move to Indiana, Henry fell ill of a fever and died. John and family, and Henry's widow and family crossed into Indiana soon after, and settled on the lands purchased the year previous.

John Work is spoken of in an early history of the State of Indiana as a surveyor, mining engineer, mill-wright, and one skilled in working metals. He at once entered into the clearing of land and building and operating mills. He at one time had three grist mills, four saw mills, a powder mill, distillery and mill for sawing stone all in successful operation, and John Work was a busy man. In 1814, after long deliberation, he began the crowning act of his life, that of blasting a tunnel through solid rock a distance of between 300 and 400 feet through the narrowest part of a peninsula where the creek makes a curve of about a mile in length, for the purpose of obtaining sufficient fall and ample water power. The obstacles were great, but nothing could turn him from his purpose. His tools were of the simplest character, and to purchase powder for the undertaking was regarded as out of the question. But as in all previous undertakings, he was equal to the emergency. He went to the cliffs of the Ohio River and there between ledges of yellow magnesion (sic) limestone he mined salt petre, bore it to the river and refined it, and transporting it home, made his own powder and did the engineering. This required the constant work of three or more men for three years.

The tunnel is ninety-four feet below the summit, six feet high and four feet wide. About seven hundred pounds of powder were used, and aside from his own work, the tunnel was finished at an outlay of about $3,300. The completion of the tunnel was the occasion of a grand celebration. He invited the people of the surrounding country to partake of his hospitalities. A grand dinner was provided. Two barrels of whiskey were rolled up to the tunnel. The head of one was knocked out, and the other was rolled through the tunnel to the other side, and a head of that barrel was knocked out. John Work and his wife rode through the tunnel on horseback. Speeches were made, and a general glorification was indulged in. History records it as the first tunnel made west of the Alleghenies. After the completion of the tunnel, another serious obstacle confronted him, and many feared his work would go for naught. Instead of a stone foundation for the mill, as was expected, he found quicksand. Believing that wood submerged in water would not rot, he had large oak trees hewn and placed in position to receive the foundation, and there rests a massive stone wall twenty or more feet in height, solid for all time to come.

He made several trips on horseback to Pennsylvania to visit his relatives and for the purchase of machinery at Pittsburg. His good wife accompanied him on two of these journeys, one time carrying a child in her arms. I find in a diary kept by him, that in the month of March, 1809, himself (sic), wife and John, his nephew, made the trip to Pennsylvania on horseback by following the trail east to Georgetown, Kentucky, thence north, taking the old Indian trail through Blue Lick, and crossing the river at Maysville, to the old Indian town of Chillicothe, thence east again to Red Stone, Pa. The time consumed was eleven and one-half days, and the party averaged thirty-one and one-half miles per day through almost unbroken wilderness.

Mr. Work's mill was patronized for miles and miles around, some coming from so great a distance as to require three and four days to make the round trip. The Indians, who used to camp in the vicinity for weeks at a time, bought flour of him, often giving silver ore in exchange, which naturally aroused the miller's curiosity as to where they procured the ore.

The Indians always claimed to him that they had a secret silvermine in the vicinity, where they could get silver in unlimited quantities, even for the purpose of molding into bullets, but that the place would never be revealed to the white man. Among the last Indians who visited him, long after the body of the tribe had left this country, was an old chief, whom he had long known, and who had always professed great friendship for him. This chief, years before, called the braves in grand council in the miller's dooryard, there smoked the pipe of peace and vowed eternal friendship to himself (sic) and his family. Mr. Work, whom one of the tribe had attempted to murder with a tomahawk at one time, thought the Indians treacherous but, nevertheless, believed their story of the secret mine. The old chief during the last visit, said to the miller that they had visited their mine for the last time, and had taken out what silver they could carry away and had sealed it up, and it would never again be opened unless the Indians reoccupied that country. He said that if the miller could find it, the white people would have all they could use, and have plenty to shoe their horses.

John Work, who had searched for silver from the first trading with the Indians at an early day, continued the search with renewed vigor after each succeeding visit of the Indians. He never did anything by halves, and attempted to make the search thorough. He explored Fourteen-Mile Creek from mouth to headwater—excavated rock whenever he thought they might have been placed artificially; explored caves, prospected along Silver Creek, tested the sulphur balls found in the bed of that stream, broke up large quantities of "niggerheads" on the knobs, in the hopes of discovering silver therein, bought large tracts of land in the Guinea Knobs, and dug great holes where he thought he could detect traces of man's work. In short, the search for silver was the prime object of his life, which he kept up until his death, which occurred in 1832. John Work has lain in his grave for fifty-nine long years, and this search for silver begun by him, has since been prosecuted (sic) by thousands. . .

From whence came the ore brought by the Indians? Silver was of no more intrinsic value to the Indians than iron. Iron was highly valued and more worn as ornaments by the Indians than silver.

The Indians were migratory and had intercourse with each other from the Pacific Ocean to the frontier settlements east of the Mississippi River. Might not this silver which aroused Uncle John Work's curiosity and started all this search have come from "far toward the setting sun"? Where silver is not, there it cannot be found. It is not here.

There was a note added to the foregoing story, by Meredith Work Long, dated 1945, and quoted here, "Within the past 25 years, a group of Indians came through this country (in motor cars, of course) and held some sort of meeting at Owen Creek Church. It was a money-making enterprise, as I remember it. At any rate, they retold the story of the silver mine and ended by saying as before, 'The white people could shoe their horses with silver if they had treated the Indians better and therefore been told the location of the great silver mine.' The holes are still visible along Fourteen Mile Creek where many different men have dug in search of the silver mine.

From a HISTORY OF THE CAMP GROUNDS, taken in part from the HISTORY OF OHIO FALLS CITIES—p. 34, we read: "Milling was a very difficult and risky business in that day and neighborhood. The Indians who came to have their corn ground, caused Work quite a bit of trouble. In the spring of 1811, while engaged in dealing with a company of Indians in his mill, a renegade, who belonged to the same crowd, stole a piece of flax linen which was drying on the outside. Mrs. Work soon discovered her loss after their departure and informed her husband. He immediately mounted a horse and started in pursuit. After a short ride, Mr. Work overtook the band, and informing them of his loss, demanded the property. A short parley ensued, upon which the thief refused to turn over the goods. Mr. Work dismounted for the purpose of using force, but was prevented by a stroke on the head near the ear by a tomahawk. His scalp was peeled off in a frightful manner, and his life was saved only by the appearance of white friends who followed, well knowing the intrepidity of the famous miller."

THE WHEEL 20 feet in diameter, 5 feet wide, had 12 4x8 inch spokes, and powered a 14 feet 9 inch shaft. The transmitting cog wheel nearly 10 feet in diameter, furnished power to stone burrs capable of grinding 2½ barrels per hour. All that remains today is shown here.

THE FLUME carried the water from the tunnel outlet (under car) past a spot close to where the man is standing; from there to the top of the overshot wheel by a wooden flume.

Raceway was built to accommodate a 26 foot wheel—a 30% increase over the wheel used.

John Work, Jr. operated the mill after the death of his father and until 1854. It was then bought by Wilford Green who owned it until 1882. The last miller was Shiloh Swango. The building burned in 1927 and the scout organization took over in 1928. It is believed that the mill furnished flour for the Union Army since there were army units in Jeffersonville and Louisville, Kentucky.

Harlan C. Dodd, who donated the excellent photo of the old Tunnel Mill, was born there in 1898, in the existing house dimly seen in the photo. I do not think it is the same house as the John Work home shown in the other photo. The hand-drawn sketch shows the house in relation to the location of the mill and the house is higher up and across the road from the mill. Mr. Dodd also told of the original dam, downstream from the present one, and also of the original wooden equipment which he noticed during his boyhood stashed around. The succeeding millers had modernized the equipment as the steel mechanism became available to them.

William Work Carithers gives us a description of the Work family cemetery (or the remains of it since it has been badly desecrated by the campers) and I will quote him directly. "The Ranger and his wife took us out to the old cemetery. When I first saw it, I thought it was a barn foundation. A wall about 3½ feet tall of faced stone, possibly 2½ feet thick surrounded a spot approximately 40 x 40 feet with a 5 foot doorway in the west wall. The graves were marked by old-fashioned flat marble slab tombstones for those 15 years or older, while the children's graves had a pointed rock buried with the point up. No identification that I could see. The number of graves coincided with the number of dead, small children. One pair of marked graves, John and Mary Ann Baird, were the only ones outside the immediate family. John Work was or had been buried in a sort of sarcophagus above ground with the sawed stone (native limestone) cover, with inscriptions, laid on top. Mom climbed up on the wall and took a picture of it after the Ranger had used powdered chalk and a wire brush to bring out the letters. We haven't had the film developed yet. Time had worked some hardship on the sidestones and one was broken. I could see that the old man wasn't inside (the Ranger thought they might have buried him when they saw the thing wasn't going to hold up)."

All that remains of Tunnel Mill today is the weather battered wheel, some traces of the millrace and, of course, the tunnel. The entrance has been blocked off to some extent for the safety of curious campers. The mute evidence remains of a persistent, industrious and thoroughly fine man who well deserves the name of Tunnel Mill John. His descendants can be proud of him.

The silver mine article was submitted by Virginia Long Funk and contains much material similar to that related by Mr. Carithers, Mr. Dodd and the campground history. In a letter to William Carithers, dated 13 Oct 1968, Mrs. Funk expressed these feelings: "When I was a child, a Mr. Dick Work, visited us from St. Louis. He was a newspaper man there, after starting out on a Louisville, Kentucky paper. He knew a great deal of the family history and wrote us later with an account of the Earl of Wark, of Cromwell's time, tracing the changing of the spelling of the name. Well, through an accident, the letter was destroyed and we meant to write for another account, but neglected to do so. Now, I am sure it is too late, as he was not a young man at that time, and I regret so much having lost the interesting story. I keep thinking that sometime we will be in St. Louis, and I will call all the Works in the phone book, hoping to locate his family. When we took him to visit the cemetery at Tunnel Mill, I can remember how shaken he was to see what vandals had done to the grave markers. I hadn't seen a man cry before, and I won't ever forget the tears that rolled down his cheeks. As I remember, Dick Work was a direct descendant of Uncle Johnny of Tunnel Mill. (Mr. Dick Work was probably Richard Reid Work spoken of in the chapter of legend and traditions and whose family record will follow in its proper order. –vgh–)

James Y. Brady, Esq., was to perform the marriage ceremony for Samuel Work and Elizabeth Johnston. He, being elected to the position recently, had never officiated at a wedding, and desirous of giving entire satisfaction, had Mr. McHenry and Sallie Work (afterwards Mrs. Steele), stop on their way thither, across the country, over a path through the woods, found a log by the wayside for a platform, and practiced his intended ceremony. It must have proven a success, for many years of pleasure the bride and groom spent together. Samuel's entire life was spent in the vicinity of his boyhood home. Although very quiet in his manner, he quite often was jocose. He was not a large, strong looking man, but very healthy. He was ill but one or two days, passing away surrounded by his entire family. Although not a leader among men, he was a true follower of Him who came to save. Quietly doing his duty, you would always find him in his place at church, or else where he felt he should be. When the country needed them, he gave three sons to its service, one of whom never came back. "Robert, the youngest, the bravest and the best," fell in the Battle of the Wilderness. Many gave precious gifts, but surely this was a great one, for of ten children, there were only four left, others dying in childhood. The diary of young Mary Alice Wood records these words under the date of 20 May 1864, "Old Uncle Samuel Work went home yesterday bowed and weeping over his son Robert's death."

Jane Work lived at home, doing her duty, until she was a young lady, when she taught school one term. She was a good scholar for the chance they had in those times, and had the best memory it is said. She could repeat psalms and most of the hymns and New Testament. If anyone was reading any place in the Bible, and would make a mistake, she would correct them without looking up. Like David of old, she loved to pray, and was always glad when Sabbath morn came, so she could go to church and hear the word of God. She was a devout Christian mother. A few moments before she died, she said, "I am going home, good-bye." Then she closed her eyes, folded her hands, and her spirit took its flight. She sleeps in Gilgal Churchyard where she always worshipped.

When Rachel Work was about eight years of age, the family moved to Squirrel Hill, Westmoreland County, and four years later to Indiana County, where she lived with her parents. There is no special history of her early life except that recalled by members of the family as related in later years by herself, as such instances as these: When quite a young girl, she and her brother James made trips on packhorses to Ligonier, Westmoreland County, for supplies for the family. In those early pioneer days, it was the custom to cultivate flax and manufacture it into cloth for the use of the family and later for sale. It was not unusual for Rachel to go on horseback seven miles beyond Indiana to the store of Archie Stewart to exchange linens of their own weaving for calico. It was considered of some importance in those days to have a calico dress. She was a member of the Presbyterian Church. She and Robert settled on a farm where they lived for their entire married life. She was always a frugal, industrious, discreet woman, of a cheerful, sunny disposition, a quiet, contented home-keeper, scarcely ever from home during her early married life. But in after years, Aunt

Rachel was a welcome visitor at many homes. She was considered a woman of good judgment and unerring in her counsels to those around her. She was the mother of seven sons and one daughter and lived to see them settled. (This casts doubt on the first death information for Miriam Wavier Hamilton). An interesting note appeared in Caldwell's HISTORY OF INDIANA COUNTY concerning a distillery begun by Robert Hamilton on the John Hamilton farm. The license for making this liquor was supplied to me by Alice (Work) Moore. Tax—18 cents per gallon. - see 3 documents and photo pp 65,66,68 and 70 -

THE HAMILTON LINE

Of interest to many of the readers will be the following information concerning the Hamiltons. Space does not permit a disclosure of all research that has been done in this area but a few items of interest have been set down.

Robert Hamilton had two brothers and two sisters. One sister, Martha, will be shown later as the wife of John Work, Rachel's brother. The other sister, Mary, was the wife of Robert Hopkins. Of Robert Hamilton's brothers: Hugh married Nancy Van Horn. One of their daughters married James M. Work and one married William A. Steele (whose mother was a Work). The other Hamilton brother, James, married Jane McCall. Their daughter, Mary Jane, married John S. Work, their son, William, married Euphemia S. Work, their son, James, married Susan Cummins Work.

This tangled type of relationships has also occurred in other Work families as well and I have tried to keep them cross referenced and straight. —vgh—

The following record is the family of the first distillery owner in that part of Indiana County. As a brother-in-law of Robert Hamilton, James Work married the daughter of James Ewing. It is this James Ewing that Caldwell credits with being the first in his area to enter into the manufacture of liquor. It is told that James Work participated in this business until the early 1830's. It was at this time that James Work became a teetotaler himself. His home was used as a stop on the underground railroad and a most interesting article concludes their family record.

Included at the end of their sketch is an acrostic, a long forgotten art, done by Mary Horne (Ewing) Work for her granddaughter.

James Work moved with his parents in 1798 or 1799 to Westmoreland County, near Squirrel Hill, Ligonier Valley; then came with his parents on pack horses to Indiana County in 1804, and settled on the old Work farm where the other children were born and Elijah Ireland Work died. He told of a trip that he and his mother made to Big Spring, when he was a young man, to visit their friends. They went on horseback and took the two youngest children with them, and had great trouble finding places to stay at night, on account of the inhospitality of the people in the middle counties. Sometimes they could not find a lodging until 10 o'clock at night. In support of the contention that their father, William Work, was not a wealthy man, we find that James and his brother (Alexander) Scroggs worked two summers near Ebensburg, on the turnpike leading from Pittsburgh to Philadelphia, earning money to pay for the farm on which the Work family was raised. He was not a leading man in either church or state, but was well read in both and could be relied on for counsel or active work in either line. He was always true to his moral convictions and counselled his family to walk in the right way and meet him in Heaven. (WFH)

We believe this (excerpts from a longer piece) was written by Mary Work Hogg, whose family record appears later in the book. It is a special addition for those who are descended from this particular part of the family.

" . . . My paternal grandmother (Mary Horn Ewing) lived with us until her death when I was twenty-one. By her I was taught to card wool for spinning, sitting on her doorstep, a child of about eight; and later she taught me to knit. Like Burns in 'Cotter's Saturday Night,' she 'mixed with admonition due,' but it is chiefly the stories my grandmother used to tell me and the songs with which she entertained us children, that I recall.

Her family had settled in the eastern part of Pennsylvania in the colonial days and it was twenty years after the new America had opened out the region west of the Alleghenies before they left their home there. In 1804, when she was five years old, the family made the journey through the mountains and settled in the Mahoning country; a father, a mother, and two children. James Ewing must have been a man of ideas and enterprise. He settled on the little Mahoning Creek, where he set himself to serve a wide, though sparsely settled, community; for in due course he had going a flour mill, a saw mill, a woolen mill, and a distillery, providing shelter, clothing, food and drink. The flour mill and the saw mill were still working in my childhood. Farmers used to pass our house with their loads of grain to be ground. I have a spoon from my grandmother which she told me had been brought to the mill in exchange for flour, presumably by someone who had not yet cleared his land for grain growing. The rule was that the miller claimed a portion of the flour in payment for the grinding.

I have never heard that my great grandparents ever returned to visit their friends east of the mountains. My grandmother herself on one occasion made that journey. It was in preparation for her wedding in her twentieth year. She rode over the mountains accompanied by her brother, to buy her wedding finery. Her silk dresses of black and pepper and salt colour never excited me, but I thrilled at the thought of the bonnet trimmed with pink and blue feathers. It would not have befitted her father's daughter to be married in homespun. Moreover, a wedding in this rather isolated community was a great event. My grandmother used to tell how, as the wedding parties rode through the forests, mischievous youths would shoot from behind the trees to enliven the horses. The distances were often considerable and if the frolic went on late, numbers of guests would have to spend the night, or what was left of it, their dormitories being a loft or part of the barn . . .

My grandmother's school education was brief and got at a price. She and her brother trudged four miles daily during the winter months to the only school available. The term would certainly not be longer than four months, probably shorter, as my own early school years were only four months long. She used to tell me that the light was dim as the windows of the log schoolhouse were of greased paper.

In her later years she was fond of writing verse and acrostics. Her mastery of English, as well as her public spirit are shown in a letter which we possess, written to a friend whom she had reason to regard as unsound on the subject of slavery. (This was in 1838. In this letter, she tells her friend of the young colored men who have just left her home on their way to liberty, gives her profound opinion of slavery and any who condone it, scolds lightly opinions which to her seem unchristianlike and ends with the advice of an intelligent person—choose good men—then go to the polls and vote. —vgh—)

ACROSTIC written for ANNA BELLE WORK

Anna - a prophetess was she,
Nor hoped her heav'n-sent Lord to see,
Nor yet to hold Him on her knee;
Anna, - a prophetess was she.

But to the temple, lo! He came!
Emmanuel - they called His name.
Little was He whom she would seek - -
Little, and frail, and pink of cheek
Emmanuel - so small and weak!

What praises from that old heart rang!
"Oh, what a privilege!" she sang,
Remembering prophecies of old: - -
"Know all: This IS the King foretold!"

Lettice Work nursed her younger brothers and sisters for quite a number of years, thus relieving her mother of a great deal of care. As she grew to womanhood, she became an adebt (sic) on the ancient musical instrument called a spinning wheel, and with other girls, as was their custom in those days, would shoulder her spinning wheel and go from house to house, thus preparing the thread with which to weave the fabric that clothed them. It was a wisely arranged system that the girls in the neighborhood would meet and spin the wool and tow or flax, and when all was spun, that web would be sent to be woven, while they would go to the next house, and so one web of cloth after another would be woven in its turn.

. . . She was a woman of high Christian attainments. The stranger was never turned hungry from her door, but many times old and dependent creatures were given home for a winter season and shared alike the comforts of her home. She, with the hearty cooperation of her spouse, took great interest in helping the fugitive slave, and would set refreshments before them at the hour of midnight, sending William or Thomas with them (on the underground railroad) to the next station. She was always kind hearted and energetic, and although she had children of her own, she was never found wanting in care or affection for the orphan, four of whom she took into her home, and with special interest trained them in the nuture (sic) and admonition of the Lord, teaching them the habits of industry and economy, thus preparing them for usefulness in this life and also in the life to come, that their setting sun may be as resplendent as her earthly career was honorable and exemplary. (WFH–1894)

An interesting note tells us that James Ewing (1767-1851) served under Mad Anthony Wayne in the War of 1812. He was the son of John Ewing, a native of Ireland, a grenadier or member of the King's bodyguard (a company distinguished for their great stature). He married Eleanor Thompson in 1760. Mary Horn was the d/o Thomas and Susan (Moffett) Horn.

After his marriage he settled on a farm later owned by Robert H. Work. Seven years later he purchased a farm 1½ miles farther down the creek and moved his family there, where he spent the remainder of his life. He and four of his brothers lived on adjoining farms, and he was a very successful farmer. He was an Elder in the Seceder Church until it united with the Union Seceders forming the U.P. Church. When John Work was two, his family moved to Ligonier Valley, and three years later to what is now Indiana Co. He lived with his family until 1825 when he married. She was a twin daughter of Robert and Ann Hamilton. Ann Hamilton was a daughter of Robert Thompson, one of a family of six children born to him. He was an early settler in Washington twp who died 18 Dec 1815. Martha's father, Robert Hamilton, came from Ireland to America following the Revolution and was granted his naturalization papers by the Westmoreland County Courts 26 Sep 1728. He died 15 Sep 1829. His wife, Ann died 13 Dec 1820.

John Work purchased a farm and built a home at the fording of the Little Mahoning Creek one mile below the present site of Rochester Mills. He was one of the five brothers who settled on adjoining farms. John was of an athletic build, measuring six feet four inches in height. The story is told that he could stand at the end of a 12 foot plank and jump to the other end of it. He could kick a hat from a peg as high as his brother, Elijah, could hang it. He also measured six feet four in height. These and many like stunts were great pastimes. He was earnest in his conviction and his faith, an adherent of and requiring faithful observing of weekly attendance in the family pew at church and was an uncompromising advocate of the sanctity of the Sabbath and many of his family sleep in the Mahoning Church cemetery. NOTE: John Alexander Work enlisted in the Civil War 21 August 1861 in Co. A, 61st Regt. Pa. Volunteer Infantry and was killed near Williamsburg, Md. He, along with his cousin, Alexander Scroggs Work and several others, was sent out on a scouting expedition, when William Work and his family arrived in Indiana County with seven children. William of this sketch was one of the seven. Upon arriving they found it all forest, as was also the greater part of the surrounding lands. There being no buildings, they hastily erected a pole shanty against a large log, which lay near where the buildings on that farm now stand, the log forming one side of the shanty, also bearing one side of the roof, which we presume was made of bark. This shanty served as a shelter for the family while erecting a log house, in which they resided for several years while opening up the farm. Young William, after his marriage, owned a farm along Little Mahoning Creek near Richmond and spent the rest of his days there successfully engaged in farming and stock raising. NOTE: The Cummins family. of which Elizabeth's father was the founder, early settled near the present site of Homer City, but were driven away in 1777 by the Indians. Hiding their pewter plates, saws, tools, and other valuables in the bed of Spring Run, they fled to friends in Virginia. On their return they found every piece of value.

Sarah Work was the first child born after the move to Indiana County. She was a most remarkable woman in many ways, energetic and industrious. When her youngest child was only about four years old, she was left the burden of providing for her family. This she did all by hard work, such as weaving on the old fashioned loom, spinning, working in the fields in harvest, hoeing corn, clipping sheep, etc. In 1852 she was left the care of two grandchildren, in addition to her own family, and it can be said that she did her duty and did it well. She had a remarkable constitution, never knowing what it was to be sick until she was 70 years old, when cancer made its first appearance on her face, and caused her death at 82. NOTE: Aaron Work Steele served two enlistments during the Civil War. He later was a farmer and stock raiser residing near Ambrose, Pa. He was County Commissioner for three years and court crier for 17 years.

Aaron Work married and moved to the Dilts mill which he attended for two or three years. He then moved to a farm later owned by R. H. Work, Sr. where he built a log house, replacing it with a frame one about 1840. In November 1865 he moved to the farm at the mouth of Broadhead Run, where he resided until his death. He was a lover of music and taught singing school in Jefferson and northern Indiana counties, teaching in Punxsutawney when it contained only six houses. He was by trade a carpenter, being the principal builder in the north end of the county for years. He was also a zealous worker in the church and Sabbath-school, always trying to do good. He entered into rest having nearly completed his 86th year, and being the oldest in years and the last of his family.

The marvelous photos shown in this chapter are a welcome addition to the book and further illustrate the value of keeping accurate records and preserving those papers and photos related to them. - vgh-

Moses Thompson Work lost his father at the age of sixteen, and the care of the farm fell principally on his shoulders, the older brothers having married and gone to homes of their own. The farm implements of that period were the wooden plow, the scythe, the sickle and the flail. At the age of 21, he married and three years later built himself a log cabin and log barn on the farm where he lived during the remainder of his life. He was a man of good taste and was considered a good farmer; had a good address and of fine appearance. He was

County Commissioner from 1854 to 1857; was often called upon as an arbitrator to settle disputes between his neighbors. At his home, the poor and the simple met with the same warm reception as those more favored with wealth and talent. Moses lost his wife and two youngest children within six days leaving him with three children under 10 years of age to care for. It was fortunate that he lived close to other family members. Five of the children of William and Miriam (Scroggs) Work lived on adjoining farms with most of the others close by. Moses was especially gifted in music and his name is mentioned many times in the records regarding music teaching, singing and other musical talents he and other family members were blessed with. Census records show he was well off financially, having real property worth $10,000 and $3,000 in cash. His brothers' net worth statements compared favorably to that of Moses. His son, Milton, a member of the U. P. Church at Mahoning for 60 years, was a farmer and stock raiser who specialized in horses, fruit and poultry. He enlisted in the 23rd Regt. of the State Militia in 1862. He and Elizabeth had no children.

LUMBERING - RAFTING - BOAT BUILDING

This well-written piece seemed to be an appropriate addition since so many of the families recorded here were involved in the lumber and rafting business in that general area:

"In these early days, sawed lumber was floated to Pittsburgh and the money was spent for supplies and provisions. These things were loaded in a canoe, which they brought with them, and was laboriously paddled or poled back home.

Just as later citizens would lobby for canals, railroads and highways, so our forefathers pressured the state legislature to appropriate money for stream improvement. In 1817, the sum of $800 was granted to improve Mahoning Creek and $1000 for Red Bank Creek. Just what was accomplished by this pork-barrel act has not been left to posterity.

By 1826, when it was obvious that steamboats would never ascend the creek, some citizens who wished to build dams were successful in securing another statute in 1826 that made Sandy Lick and Red Bank Creeks navigable only for descending rafts and boats. Thus property owners along the banks might erect dams if they provided chutes for water-craft to cross. . . .

The first boats to be floated down Red Bank Creek were piloted by Samuel Knapp in 1832 or 1833. Legend claims that he was dressed in full Indian regalia. His grandfather, Uriah Matson, owned these two boatloads of rough lumber which he sold in Cincinnati. With the proceeds from this sale, Matson opened a store in Brookville.

During those early years, scarcely any authoriatative accounts are available and what little is known is based on hear-say evidence. Bars of pig iron were supposed to have been carried by pack horses from Centre County to Port Barnett. So much iron was shipped from that point that a gravel bar below Timber Island was called 'Iron Bar' from the many wrecks that occurred there.

Probably this metal was shipped in arks, which appeared every spring by the hundreds on the Delaware and Susquehanna Rivers. They were not of any one design. One type, built on the West Branch below Clearfield, was made in two sections. Each looked like a flat iron, being sixteen feet wide and from forty to fifty feet long. They were built upside down on the river bank in order to permit the bottom plank to be pinned more easily.

When finished, a crew of husky men, well fortified with whiskey, turned them over with a splash into the water. Once afloat, the sides were studded and planked to a height of four to six feet. Then the two sections were fastened together at their flat ends, thus making a complete boat of 80 to 100 feet, with both ends pointed. Whether pioneer boats on the Clarion and Red Bank were like these Clearfield boats is not known.

Generally, arks were made not only to carry iron but also farm produce, shingles, wood ashes and lumber. Over on the Clarion River, the first boats were also small and were turned over onto piles of brush. Another trick of turning them was to float one upside down across the current. Then heavy stones were shifted to the upper side in the hope that the water would sink the boat and turn it over at the same time. Boat building did not become an important industry until the building of iron furnaces in the 1830's and 1840's.

There are many types of rafts, but only two were important in the history of Jefferson County – timber rafts and board rafts. There are, furthermore, two types of timber rafts – round and square.

Nearly all early rafts were made of square timber, containing three to four platforms of sticks from thirty to sixty feet in length. A big timber raft on the Clarion River might contain 14,000 cubic feet, but the average was closer to 10,000.

On Red Bank Creek, rafts were somewhat smaller, around 8,000 cubic feet for a large one and 4,000 for a small one. On Mahoning Creek we have no information on size but would speculate that timber rafts may have been smaller.

(The writer goes on here to describe in detail the structure and construction of the rafts . . . Perhaps some of the fathers listed in this as carpenters, were in fact raft builders. –vgh–)

. . . Upon the Clarion River, boat building perpetuated the lumber buisness for years after it had declined elsewhere. As we have already seen, arks or small boats were built nearly everywhere in Pennsylvania by pioneer settlers as a means of sending their goods to urban markets. What sustained this industry on the Clarion River was the development of iron-making.

Beginning in 1829 with Myers furnace at Clarion, twenty-eight were put into blast within seventeen years, according to Professor A. J. Davis, superintendent of the normal school. Twenty-one used the Clarion to ship their pig iron and the other seven depended upon Red Bank Creek or the Allegheny River.

By 1845, the furnaces on the Clarion River were producing about 21,000 tons of iron, which required more than two hundred boats a year to transport. These shipments continued in diminished amounts for another twenty-five years. Altogether it was estimated by Professor Davis that more than 4000 iron boats were built throughout this period.

After the nation's economy had recovered from the devastation of the Panic of 1837, rafting increased by leaps and bounds. By 1840, there were sixty-eight sawmills in Jefferson County, all of them being powered by water and producing annually less than a $1,000 worth of lumber each.

In many instances, lumbering was a supplement to agriculture for Jefferson County families since a father and his sons could operate an up-and-down mill during the spring and summer, and work on the farm the rest of the year.

This source of cash income and the adventure of a trip to Pittsburgh caused rafts to be built in places where it would be considered impossible today.

For instance, settlers in the Falls Creek area cleared Sandy Lick in 1847 and sent their first rafts to market in the following year. Although the community celebrated the centennial of this event in 1948, the historians who wrote a History of Falls Creek neglected to mention who were these pioneer lumbermen.

Throughout the 1850's parts of rafts were floated down the creek from Shaffer's Siding, beyond DuBois, to Falls Creek, where they were assembled into conventional size. So narrow was the waterway at this point, that two days to a week were required to float this short distance.

Our raftsmen at this time usually dressed in red flannel shirts, various types of fur hats or a battered felt hat, pitch-stained trousers and homemade leather boots. In later years, their appearances would be more varied including rubber foot-gear and raincoats for bad weather.

A former waterman from Brockway, Bion Butler, recalled that most of them came home with a new suit of clothes from the many clothing stores along Liberty Avenue in Pittsburgh. As he explained this curious custom:

'The plan of buying a suit was to look over everything shown, try on the stuff, and then yammer over the price. Nobody ever thought of paying the first price asked, and we would go back and forth from one store to another, maybe buying a coat one place, a vest another, trousers elsewhere, making up a composite suit and adding a hat and a pair of shoes somewhere else until we came home fearfully and wonderfully outfitted .

These annual excursions to the big city were usually accompanied by much horse-play, excessive drinking and frequent brawling. One of the big attractions in Pittsburgh was Ben Trimble's variety show, and his theatre during rafting season was always crowed with noisy patrons from the timber country.

As traffic increased on Jefferson County streams, it became more and more apparent that some kind of supervision was necessary. Though everyone realized the need for such action, no one was willing to take the initiative until Thomas K. Litch . . . purchased 3,000 acres of good timberland on the North Ford and Barr's sawmill and grist mill in Brookville. While operating the old sawmill, he built a second with the most modern equipment of that time.

His next problem was transportation. With only the creek to ship his lumber to market, Thomas Litch saw the critical need for business-like management of the waterway in order that everyone might benefit both equally and mutually . . . .

Through the assistance of Judge R. G. Gordon, a charter was obtained from the General Assembly in 1854 to incorporate the Red Bank Navigation Company.

By terms of its charter, the Red Bank Navigation Company was authorized to clean out Red Bank, Sandy Lick and North Fork of rocks, bars, and other obstructions, to build and regulate bracket dams, to inspect dam chutes and generally police the waterway.

To achieve these purposes, the company could collect tolls from all rivermen when they reached the mouth of Red Bank Creek. Even before the company was organized, Lewis Corbett began to blast rock obstructions below New Bethlehem, especially within a distance of two and a half miles beyond Broken Rock.

Apparently the company had difficulty collecting tolls as was later the case on the Clarion River where raftsmen suddenly forgot their names, pretended to misunderstand the orders of the toll collectors or treated the whole matter as a joke.

For this reason, the Red Bank company received additional powers from the state legislature in 1860. Persons who refused to identify themselves might be fined $100 and/or imprisoned for sixty days in county jail . . . .

The immediate results of the Red Bank Navigation Company was a reduction in the number of collisions and wrecks, less stealing by dishonest person nicknamed 'Algerienes', and a doubling in the size of rafts. Whereas board rafts had contained from twenty to twenty-five thousand board feet; they could now be built as large as fifty thousand . . . .

(He goes on to describe the building of and use of bracket dams. This was a device frequently used to raise the stage of water in the creek and to increase the capacity of the stream to carry traffic. By opening one bracket dam, then another, flood water would pour from dam to dam, making it possible to raft during periods that would normally be unsuited to rafting because of the low water level.)

In Brookville, years ago, school boys would stand on the bracket log and jump down to the rafts as they passed through the Litch chute. Raftsmen did not object to these hitch-hikers because the boys helped to push the oars . . . .

Fred Pfaff was one of the boys who enjoyed catching such rides after school. He said they always tried to get off if the raft hit the bank for otherwise they were carried all the way to Coder and had a weary walk back home.

Kate Scott reported in her history of the county that the lumber trade in 1854 exceeded twenty million board feet for Red Bank Valley. On North Fork, twenty-two mills produced ten million, on Sandy Lick twenty mills cut another ten million, on Red Bank and Little Sandy fifteen produced 3,500,000 for a total of 23,500,000 feet. At the same time, five million shingles were made and 1,200,000 linear feet of square timber, making a grand total of three million cubic feet for all types.

Meanwhile, the Mahoning Navigation Company was incorporated in 1858, four years later than Red Bank and two years after the former was officially organized. The need for this concern was apparent in 1854 when Henry Brown built a gang mill with a capacity of 60,000 feet daily, and was unable to operate it because there was insufficient transportation to handle so much lumber.

Coming back from a rafting trip could be a pleasant stroll or a forced march. Many who were able to resist the lure of the bottle were anxious to earn as much as possible during a good rafting season would run down Red Bank or Mahoning Creeks during the daylight hours and walk back at night for another trip the next day.

How many consecutive trips such an industrious soul could make was a true test of manhood. Albert Paine, during the Civil War, made six such trips in six days. Being a pilot, he was paid $20 for each trip but the script he was given later became worthless . . .

Most youngsters on Mahoning Creek went only as far as the 'Rough waters' where pilots were hired to finish the trip. After it was possible to return from Pittsburgh by railroad, women and girls often were treated to a rafting or boating trip. This practice was practically unknown on eastern waters. Sometimes, for the sake of privacy, the men slept in a tent and the women occupied the shanty. . . .

The peak for rafting in Pennsylvania was the year of the Panic in 1873 and five or six years preceding it. In 1872, according to Kate Scott, there were 917 timber and 570 board rafts made on all branches of Red Bank Creek. She estimated these crafts came from 150 individuals or firms and amounted to 1,500,000 cubic feet of timber and 20,000,000 board feet of lumber. The largest single shipper was Alfred Bell and Co. on Sandy Lick. During these prosperous years the congestion almost duplicated modern conditions. To prevent jams and collisions, the Navigation Company developed the expediency of issuing tickets to determine the order by which rafts might 'tie loose.'

In addition to a nation-wide suspension of business after the Panic of 1837, the Low Grade division of the Allegheny Valley Railroad was completed from the Allegheny to Driftwood.

One of the immediate victims of this new competition was the board raft. Planing mills never liked lumber shipped by water because it became so soaked that a year of air-drying was required to make it suitable for finishing.

Another objection was the presence of sand, grit and silt that dulled the saws and knives at the finishing mills. Finally, the boards became so dirty and stained that they lost their original eye-appeal and buttery color."

John Leasure Work was born on the old homestead farm of John Work, the pioneer, and with the exception of a few years, spent on an adjoining farm, he lived there until 1886 when he sold the homestead to Joseph H. Stewart and moved to, then, Hamill, Pa. He conducted a small store and acted as postmaster until his death.

He served, consecutively, three five year terms as Justice of the Peace and refused re-election on account of failing health. He and his wife were members of Gilgal Church. NOTE: Harry White Work, who d 6 Oct 1941, was editor of the Pennsylvania Press at Lindsey, Pa. which he established in 1893. William Alexander Work was a teacher for a time and was a member of Mahoning United Presbyterian Church. He was an industrious and progressive farmer, a devout Christian and a most beloved husband and father. He was intensely interested in improved strains of livestock, grain, fruit and ornamental trees. His untimely death came from a brain injury received when he fell from his barn loft. The heritage he passed on is shown by one of his granddaughters serving as a missionary in India and all of his grandsons who grew to maturity serving as church officers, four as ruling Elders, and the fifth, who, refusing the eldership, served faithfully as a trustee for many years. William and Maria are both buried at Mahoning United Presbyterian Church graveyard in Indiana County, Pa.

"Josiah Work was born on what was known as the Ewing farm. We speak of it as the 'Old Home down the Creek' . . . In 1860 he bought from his father the farm on which he was raised consisting of 222 acres for $3500 with the proviso that he would care for his parents for their life . . . Josiah's opportunities for schooling were limited to four short terms in a one room rural school but he was an educated man of his generation as he used his eyes and ears on every occasion, whether on a book or in a conversation with those with whom he traveled or in attending meetings . . . In politics Josiah was early a Greenbacker but with the birth of prohibition party he was an ardent supporter and early allied himself with the WCTU . . ." (by his son, James, about 1955).

"Josiah Work came to Colorado in 1897 from Western Pennsylvania. He had spent all his life in the lumber business in Indiana and Forest Counties, Pa., with different partners and varying success. The last company had been known as 'Josiah Work and Sons,' the sons being Thomas S. Work and J. Calvin Work. By 1897 most of the timber in the plot owned by the company had been cut off, and Josiah was suffering from bronchial trouble that was aggravated by his work in the damp Pennsylvania forests. He was attracted to Colorado by the fact that another son, Cree T. Work, was on the faculty of what was then the Greeley Normal School, and by the presence of his cousin, Dr. Hubert Work, later Secretary of Interior under President Coolidge, at Pueblo . . . Josiah Work did not move to Fort Morgan in 1897, largely because there was no United Presbyterian Church in the town at that time, but purchased a home in Greeley . . . commuting from Greeley to Fort Morgan via horse and buggy . . . the Presbytery did not feel justified in authorizing the funds necessary to start a new congregation with so little hope of success . . . the senior Work with his own funds built a small brick church building, persuaded Dr. J. P. Gibson of Tarkio, Missouri, to come as pastor and organized a congregation. He went to the next meeting of the Presbytery and told them that he had a church building, free from debt, erected on a lot which would provide for expanding the building and still have space on which to build a parsonage; that he had a United Presbyterian minister with a year's salary deposited in a local bank and a congregation of 36 members, with four ordained elders. He didn't tell them that 22 of those members were Works and that twelve of the other 14 members worked for him. The new church was duly organized with the reluctant blessing of the Colorado Presbytery . . . " (by his son, McClean Work).

"Being possessed of great foresight, he at once grasped the possibility of transforming the dry Fort Morgan flats to good farmlands by irrigation. With that end in view, he organized and helped finance the Bijou Canal and reservoir and later also the great Empire reservoir and thus made possible the present great Bijou Irrigation District and the rich farms now contributing to the wealth of Fort Morgan." (by Edward Hellstern in the Ft. Morgan Times–9 June 1953).

"On the night of December 11, 1909, this old pioneer called his four sons who lived in Fort Morgan: Thomas, Calvin, James and Robert, and asked them to come to the house. He sat at his desk and asked Robert, who was a practicing attorney, to make a list of his holdings as he described them. From memory he listed some 40 pieces of property in Pennsylvania and Colorado, describing each piece as to its location and size. He had previously sent each of the eleven living children a deed to 80 acres of land. Much of this land was good only for pasture. He had Robert draw up articles of incorporation for what was to be known as The Work Land and Coal Company, of which his wife was to own one-half and each of the eleven children one twenty-second. He signed the necessary papers and they were witnessed. It is remarkable that in the following years it was discovered that this inventory from memory had omitted only one item, three shares of stock worth about $300. After the papers of the new corporation had been signed and witnessed, Mr. Work got out the Bible, as was his custom each night, read a chapter, having previously asked Mrs. Work to join the five men and they all knelt as he led them in prayer. The sons went to their homes and Mr. and Mrs. Work retired for the night. He went directly to sleep, a sleep from which he awaked in another land." (by his son, McClean Work).

Back, Thad, Minnie, John, Lester Front: Eliza, Anna, Etta, Sallie, Robert H.

Robert Hamilton Work, a lumberman and farmer near Richmond, Pa., rafted spars down the Susquehanna River from Cherry Tree, Pa. to Marietta, O. in his younger days. Later his operations were along the Little Mahoning Creek and extending downstream to a market at Pittsburgh, Pa. He operated a grist mill for a time and a saw mill called Work's Mills. He erected a 64 x 75 foot barn and a twenty room house on the homestead owned by him at the time of his death. This house, which burned in 1914, is shown in the photo. He was a large contributor in the planning and erecting of the Richmond United Presbyterian Church in 1875. NOTE: Etta was educated in State Normal School, Indiana, Pa. and Penn State College. She taught school for many years in the surrounding counties. In her travels she added much genealogical information to the 1894 Work Family History. She was with the Charleroi, Pa. School District from 1906-1923, the greater part of that time as principal as well as teacher. She died childless at the age of 92, the widow of David W. Krytzer whom she married before 1900. In those days their supplies were hauled over the mountains from Tyrone, Pa., requiring three days to make this trip overland.

He was affiliated with the Methodists of Susquehanna, being a steward and a trustee for many years. They located on a farm in Bell twp., known as the "Old Weaver Farm" four miles below Burnside where he and his wife spent the rest of their days.

Hubert Work planned to go to California to practice medicine after graduating from the University of Pa. Medical School at Philadelphia in 1885. He stopped in Greeley to visit his cousin, James Work McCreery. While there he contracted typhoid fever, and Mary Melvina (Arbuckle) McCreery, his cousin's wife nursed him until he recovered. During his convalescene, Laura May Arbuckle came to visit her sister and Dr. Work fell in love with her. They were married and moved to Ft. Morgan. Later they located at Pueblo and there founded Woodcroft Hospital, the first mental institution in the Rocky Mountain area. He was a Presbyterian and a Mason.

Dr. Hubert Work

In an article on boners by political candidates and their entourages, we find this concerning Hubert Work—On Hoover's campaign train, ex-Secretary of the Interior, Hubert Work, told a western crowd, "I've spent many delightful hours in your beautiful little city. It is a very genuine pleasure to find myself back in _____," He then whispered to a colleague standing beside him these words which a microphone picked up—"Where the hell are we?"

Dr. Hubert Work was a Lieutenant Colonel in the US Army Medical Corps and in WW I was a medical adviser to the Provost Marshal General. He served as President of the American Medical Association; Assistant Postmaster General—1921; Postmaster General—1922; Secretary of the Interior—1923-1928. One of his first acts in this latter capacity was to clean the department of all traces of the scandal resulting from the leasing of the Teapot Dome in Wyoming naval oil reserve. His reorganization of the department was reputed to have reduced expenditures 129 million dollars the first three years of his tenure. He had no tolerance for clock watchers, ordering all clocks removed from the Interior dept. when he became secretary. A close friend of Calvin Coolidge, Dr. Work also fought side by side with the White House physician to save the life of President Harding. Dr. Work is buried in Arlington National Cemetery.

Jeremiah Boston Work received a B.S. from Westminster College; D.D.–Westminster; was a graduate student at Princeton Univ.; Princeton Theological Seminary and Allegeny Theological Seminary. The following excerpts appeared in the 1930 issue of the TARKIANA. The writer's name is not noted.

". . . He was ordained a minister in the United Presbyterian Church in 1886 when he was installed pastor at McCoysville, Pa. He was principal of Norfolk Mission College, an institution for colored students, for a few years . . . He was then made Dean of the Theological Dept of Knoxville College and remained in this position until a serious break in his health occurred. His life was despaired of and his physicians gave him no hope but through the careful nursing of his faithful wife and in answer to the prayers of his devoted colored friends, he recovered and became pastor at Tranquility, Ohio, a pastorate which continued until 1910 when he became pastor at Olathe, Kansas, where he remained until called to beome Vice-President and Teacher of Bible in Tarkio College . . . A great teacher and a preacher of outstanding ability, Mr. Work was honored with the degree of D.D. by his alma mater in 1902, was made moderator of the Synod of Iowa of the United Presbyterian Church in 1916, and was a member of the Board of Managers of Xenia Theological Seminary at the time of his death . . . . One day a few of us were talking about being Christians, and about the difference between the average church member and the man who was truly Christ-like. One boy expressed the opinion of the group when he said, 'I can be a Christian part of the time, but Dr. Work is a Christian all the time.' When he stood at the door of his classroom with his 'Goodmorning', and when he chided us in his kindly way for being late to class, we loved him. When he asked us a question which we should have known, but answered wrongly, his 'Oh, no dear, you know better than that', showed that he loved us–the meanest, the most mischievous, the most careless of us he loved–and love begets love. . . . He did not teach us the Bible as a textbook, he taught it to us as the Word of God. He pointed us always upward and onward; never to the Christ in the tomb, but always to the Christ who died and is alive forevermore. To have known Dr. Work was a privilege, to have been in his classes year after year was a priceless treasure, a treasure which will go with us through life, a holy influence urging us never to let down the bars, but always to be at our best. When we meet him again, he will greet us with the same rare smile."

Perhaps we can know Jeremiah Boston Work better if we can read some of his thoughts and feelings. This was published in the TARKIANA in 1928:

"Character is like the mosaics of the buried past. Built up little by little, it becomes the unchanging memorial of life. Its perfection is . . . its appeal to truth and beauty . . . children of Genius . . . took the little things, the common things, the clays, the glasses, the stones, the metals, and arrayed them in harmonies of color and form that fill the soul with the aching sense of the beautiful. Singly the elements of the mosaic are insignificant; touched into order by the inspiration of the artist, they live and breathe, and speak. Life and character are made up of little things . . . Their elements may fall into chaos and discord, or may march to the music of a divine harmony. The material of character must at least be sound, something that will at least survive the tests of time and change . . . Nothing can be achieved in the formation of good character without order of harmony and purpose . . . Though we may work humbly and obscurely, some day the light of heaven will fall upon our finished task, and we shall see that ours was an essential part in an eternal plan."

NOTE: Dr. Eunice Work, d/o Jeremiah, was educated at Tarkio College; Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y. and Columbia University, N.Y. She was a member of the Archaeological Institute of America, of the Royal Numismatic Society of England; a fellow of the American Numismatic Society and a Life member of the Classical Association of New England. At Wheaton College, of Norton, Mass., she was head of the Department of Classics, teaching Latin and Greek.

My father, Earl Clifton Work, lived his entire life in the Jimtown, Pa. area. He worked at various jobs during his lifetime but was a man who could do most anything from build a house to shoe a horse. He liked to hunt and could outshoot most of the younger men until a retinal hemorrhage resulted in the loss of the sight of his right eye. Dad could also play several musical instruments. This he picked up by himself as he never had music lessons. Some of my earliest memories are the way we spent our evenings. Dad with the "fiddle," Homer or Ralph with the guitar and Ethel or Verba at the organ. The rest of us were good listeners as we didn't seem to have inherited this musical talent. One of our prized possessions is a guitar Dad made from a 5 gallon oil can. My mother and dad taught us all to accept responsibility and to work. I do not believe there is one of us today who does not live up to his name. The teachings of our childhood remain with us all today and we are all very grateful to have had parents who took the time to show us right from wrong.

If there are blank spaces in this history (the descendants of Alexander Work–b abt 1745) it is because the information was not available or those who did know the information just didn't pass it on. I wish to thank all of those who helped me with this and hope it is a means of enlightenment to those of the family who were interested but had no information on hand to submit–Emma E. Work, Upper Darby, Pa.–

"... The subject of this sketch was a humanitarian. Of his many virtues none were more prominent than charity. The poor, the afflicted, the homeless and unfortunate within the range of his knowledge, could testify to his generosity and kindness. He never allowed anyone to go from his home hungry for want of an invitation to eat with him, or refused any shelter for the night, no matter what was the condition of either party. If it were not convenient to entertian, he made it so, and promptly offered the hospitality of his home.

He joined the Christian Church in his youth and lived a consistent religious life always. He never indulged in the least profanity, was the soul of truth and honor from his boyhood, and was entirely free from guile. To everyone connected with his household, he was ever thoughtful and kind, ever evincing a cheerfulness under all circumstances, that was admirable indeed. Always patient, uncomplaining and perfectly unselfish, his place in the affections of his family and friends will remain a void that nothing else in this life can fill. As a husband and father, he was all that could have been desired, ever faithful, devoted and kind, in all his domestic relations he was a model man. . . .

This sketch came from the "Obituary Scrapbook" of Mrs. H. Frank (Belle Phillipi) Work and was written by her husband, son of the subject of the sketch. (contributed by Virginia Long Funk)

No event of special importance marked the life of Samuel Work. He was educated in the subscription schools, attended Clark Co. Seminary and remained under the parental roof until age 23. Then he bade goodby to home and friends and with three companions started to Iowa on a prospecting tour. He purchased 200 acres of land near Birmingham, Iowa where he located. This was in Van Buren Co., due south of Fairfield. Soon afterward, he brought his young bride to the west, making the journey by river, and they began their domestic life in a little log cabin with puncheon floors. The windows looked more like portholes rather than what they had intended. Their lives have since past and that pioneer home was long since replaced by a commodious residence. His home farm, comprising 240 acres, and his landed possessions aggregate 1200, making him one of the extensive land owners of the county. A friend of education, he gave his children good advantages fitting them for the practical duties of life. He was a Republican, having supported that party since 1856 and manifested considerable interest in political affairs and had the pleasure of hearing speeches by Henry Clay, S. S. Prentiss and other noted orators of the day.

Jane "Jennie" Firebaugh (1866-1944)

Following service in the Spanish American War the family moved to Roger Mills Co., Okla. to homestead. Helen was just six weeks old at the time. Their homestead was near Rankin (now Reydon). Peter Dilts Work had received a portion of surplus Indian lands through the government lottery. This was several years after the famed Oklahoma land rush. The melons grew very good as well as corn and cotton. A prairie fire took their first crop. They went in debt the first winter to buy feed. In 1908 the family moved to Cheyenne, Okla. because they were not able to farm successfully. Peter Dilts Work was a Justice of the Peace from 1909-1910. A restless man, he liked pioneering, a jack of all trades, farmer, carpenter, fireman for a large mill, well digger, clerk, casket salesman. Scarlet fever struck the family in 1911. All recovered but fourteen year old Stella. She was buried near her infant sister at Rankin. The move to Crestone, Colo. was made in 1914, and on to Salida in 1915. Seventeen year old Homer was buried here in 1918. In 1921 they moved to Gunnison, Colorado and bought a ranch. About 1930 they moved to Long Beach where he was active in real estate and later retired. Their surviving children gathered for their fifteth wedding anniversary in 1939. They had met when he came to visit his sister, Bertha, who was a missionary in Utah. Jenny was also working in the mission field at the time.

1478 B i. Margaret Hindman Hogg - b 15 Oct 1894; d 3 Aug 1935
1479 B ii. Winifred Hope Hogg - b 3 Dec 1898

Mary Elizabeth Work took a large share in bringing up her younger brothers and sisters. who all their lives long held her in the greatest esteem and affection. At the age of twelve Mary began making her own clothes and also most of the clothes of her brothers and sisters. At sixteen she began teaching in their country school, sometimes nearly a hundred pupils varying in age from 6 to 21 years.

Mary longed to answer the call for missionaries to Africa, and so in 1882 she went to Indiana Normal School to train as a teacher. Within six months of her graduation, Mary was called home by the sudden death of her mother, to look after her father and the younger brothers and sisters. When, four years later, in 1890, her father remarried, Mary was free to fulfill her heart's desire, and she joined the staff of the American Mission in Assiut, Egypt. Here she met the Rev. Hope W. Hogg, Vice-Principal of the college of which his father was the founder.

She was a considerable Arabic scholar, she had a keen and infectious interest in music, art and literature, and she was actively involved in many affairs outside the University, especially those concerned with education and with international understanding. But it is above all for her personality and its influence that she is still remembered.

In 1894, Mary and her husband, Hope Hogg, went to Oxford, England and in 1903 to Manchester where he had been appointed to the new chair of Semitic Languages and Literatures. For her service at the University and her collaboration with her husband in the translation of Arabic works, some as old as the Second Century, she was awarded an honorary degree by the University.

On her husband's death, 15 Feb 1912–Manchester, Eng., she was made dean of women students. She retired from it after 18 years, in 1930, full of honors, and warmed by the affections not only of students, professors and trustees, but of every student she had known in all the long years of service, for she had the rare gift of remembering every one she had known, and she kept up her interest in them irrespective of their assessed degree of success or failure.

She established the Hope Hogg Book Prize, given periodically at Assiut College, and in tribute to her it was said, "She served many big causes generously."–by her daughter–Winifred Hogg– - photo p 196 -

Thomas Scroggs Work md Della Baylor whose parents ran the boarding house for lumbermen in Redclyffe. She attended Indiana Normal School for a time and taught in Indiana Co., Pa. The family moved to Ft. Morgan in the spring of 1902, along with her sister and family, the John Horton Works. Taking virgin prairie west of town they raised alfalfa, wheat and sugar beets. Mr. Work was a leader and director in the development of the Bijou Irrigation Co. Later he drilled one of the first irrigation wells in the area.

Mr. Work always had a hobby. He brought a few Jersey cows from Pa. and always sold top grade butter from these and in the 1910's ran a dairy route. His big Percheron horses were his pride and joy. His aviary produced both comb and extracted honey of a high grade, over 1 ton a year. He raised bronze turkeys and for a few years Peking ducks. After moving to town in 1920 he specialized in more than 50 kinds of iris and grew more than 30 varieties of grapes.

In a newspaper article at the time of his death–"In his death there passes one of the interesting and positive characters which has been influential in the community during all these years . . . The church was his first interest . . . He was known for his strong convictions on various subjects in which he was well informed. He was outspoken on what he believed was wrong and a staunch supporter of what he thought was right. Few issues were raised among the people that he didn't voice his position and take his stand."–by his daughter–Elizabeth Jane Work - photo p 196 -

1489 + iv. Robert Archibald Work - b 31 Aug 1904

Cree Telford Work received his education in Westminster College, State Normal School, and Columbia University. He also took special summer courses at the Univer. of Calif. at Berkeley and in Sweden's Technical School in Boston. At his graduation from Indiana Normal he faced the momentous decision of taking further college training to fit him for mission work in Persia, all expenses to be paid by a local benefactor, or making teaching his life work with further college expenses to be paid by himself. He chose the latter course.

His first position was the superintendency of DuBois City Schools where he served for two years and where he fell in love with a vice-principal, Mary Brown. From DuBois he was called to a teaching position in the Colorado Teachers College at Greeley where he taught math, drawing and manual training for eight years. His twin sisters and his sweetheart all resigned their teaching positions in Pa. and followed him, arriving in Denver for a December wedding.

From Greeley he was called to San Francisco where he introduced pioneer polytechnic features into the city schools and for several years was general supervisor of such work.

Again, after several years, when Texas applied to Columbia University for a man to become president and to organize their new state college for women at Denton, Nicholas Murray Butler recommended that they take Mr. Work. He was there for the first eight years of the life of that great college . . . Following his return to California, he organized the Venice Polytechnic High School, one of the first in the state . . .

. . . In every community in which he lived he affiliated himself and his family with an established church and in his own home was an outstanding example of Christ to his children and to the wife of nearly three score years.

All the schools previously mentioned, plus Reedley Joint Union High School, Yuba City High School, Fresno Central Union High School and Los Angeles Adult schools are in part a monument to this great and good and fearless torch bearer. He was truly a school organizer and engineer as well as administrator. (A miscellaneous note reads: First High School principal in Calif. to utilize motion pictures for instruction purposes and in 1915, films taken of the school and its types of work attracted wide attention at the Pan-Pacific Exposition in San Francisco.—vgh—) —by his wife, Mary Brown Work— - photo p 196 -

Morgan Times tells us: "They came to Ft. Morgan in Nov 1907 and lived here until March 1910 when they moved out onto the Work place just east of town. Work helped complete the present United Presbyterian Church building and was elected Elder at that time. He was active in every phase of his church's work. He taught a teenage boys' Sunday School class many years. He was a charter member of the Brotherhood Bible Class. He was an honorary member of the WCTU.

Rachel Ella Work

John Christian Bailar

Ella Work was a baby in Forest Co., Pa. when John C. Bailar was already a man of nine years trudging with the other men alongside the covered wagon that carried his mother and the younger children from drought-ridden Kansas to Colorado. She was only eleven when John graduated from Leadville High School in the first class to graduate there. The twins were very close. When one stayed home ill from school, the other stayed home, too. When Anna had her hair cut, after diphtheria, Ella also had her hair cut. When they were seventeen, they took the buggy and went out to apply as teachers . . . They each taught one year of school . . . In 1892, Cree was asked to teach at Colorado. He invited the twins to come there to live with him and his bride and to attend Teachers' College. They graduated two years later.

Ella was teaching in Glenwood Springs when she and John met, appropriately in church. John had been a Presbyterian Elder since he was 23. Ella taught in Denver the next year, but John continued his courtship under the sharp eye of the twin sister, and they were md two years later in Denver. They very soon found that each had dreamed of attending the University, and when the second term opened in January 1898, they were there. They had almost no money, but they both worked. Others of the 300 students worked their way, too, and kept house in rented rooms. Several of the group later became distinguished men and women in education, political life, and industry. So it was a happy time. Learning was a lifelong joy to them both, as were the associations with students and faculty. They graduated with honors in 1901. John later did graduate work and received a master's degree at the University of Colorado in 1905. John taught for one year at Cripple Creek High School, then 15 years at the Colorado School of Mines and was 14 years a research chemist for the Great Western Sugar Company. From 1903 until Ella's death, they lived in Golden where they were loved and respected by faculty and students and by the church they loved so well. They were lovers and intellectual companions. They set high standards for their children. Ella died in 1933, and John spent the rest of his life waiting to join her. He died 13 years later, still active and busy, but ready.—by their daughter—Ruth (Bailar) Lenger—

The twins must have been very much alike if not identical. Anna used to tell of reciting twice in a grammar class while Etta recited twice in arithmetic . . . maintained an unusually close relationship even though they were widely separated geographically . . . After Normal School, Anna taught art in Denver. Then, after Aunt Ella md, Anna went to Europe on a tour and spent some months acting as secretary to Hope Hogg, her older sister's husband, who was working on the new English Dictionary . . . Anna felt very close to all her relatives and carried on a voluminous correspondence with all of them. Her letters were always big, and fat with many pages, clippings, even sketches or paintings in water color. She wrote lots of letters "to the editor" and to her congressman, etc. . . . She took a very active interest in everything that went on in her church, her community and the world community. She was a charter member of the local Women's Library Club and active in it until her death. They were most active in establishing the first Charleston Public Library.

She joined the D.A.R. and urged her children to join in order to know more of their ancestry and because she was so proud of her lineage. She was an early supporter of the NAACP and was militant in her defense of minority groups . . . Both she and Ella were ardent pacifists and mamma was a real "go getter" for women's rights. I'd never have convinced Daddy I could go to Medical School if it hadn't been for her . . .

All the children in our neighborhood were introduced to the works of William Shakespeare on rainy days . . . She would read and our dolls or ink bottles did the acting . . . She was freqeuntly asked to come to our school or Sunday School to tell stories which she illustrated with colored chalk on the blackboard. . . .

Mother was not a beautiful nor a pretty woman but she had charm. She carried herself like a queen and she loved pretty and stylish clothes and always dressed with exquisite and refined taste. She liked parties, company, and good conversation and really suffered when she had to sit and wait all dolled up to go to a ball or a reception and Daddy was delayed by a sick patient. . . .

She played the piano relatively well, sang very well . . . had a marvelous sense of humor and really enjoyed living. She taught us very early to laugh with, not at people and she always could find a bright spot in any situation . . . Mother was in constant demand as a speaker for both adults and young peoples meetings. She had a wonderful vocabulary and a forceful delivery . . . The very center of Mother's life was always her dedication to Jesus Christ and her church. Next to that was her family–but she loved life, and people, all people. I believe you can sum it up that everyone loved her because she loved everyone and let them know it.

655 RUTH ADELLA WORK – d/o JOSIAH and SARAH (HINDMAN) WORK (241); was b 5 Sep 1874–Enterprise, Pa. As a girl she decided she wished to spend her life in missionary service. Attendance at the Northfield Conference heightened her resolve.

She attended Grove City College for two years, then taught two years to repay the loan which one of her brothers had extended without interest. To prepare herself for a life she hoped to spend in school work in Egypt, she next attended the State Normal School in Indiana, Pa. After graduating, she taught two years in New Kensington, Pa. to repay those school debts.

There followed a serious break in her health requiring her to lay aside her plans for Egypt and spend three years recuperating . . . Thanks to her father, she spent her third year of recuperation at Oxford, Eng. with her sister, Mary, (Mrs. Hope Hogg). The Hoggs had been missionaries in Egypt until Professor Hogg's health required their withdrawal to Scotland, his homeland.

Life in that home furthered her desire to serve in Egypt. While there she received an invitation from two sisters of Mr. Hogg to come to the Pressley Memorial Institute, Assiut, Egypt, for a two year term as teacher of English and piano. She began her service in Oct 1902 and continued it till her retirement in 1945, being appointed a full-term missionary at the conclusion of the two year term. Thus, "she spent forty-three years training Egypt's daughters, and winning them to loyalty to Christ." (Mary L. Thompson, PMI Memorial Service for Miss Work, reported in Missionary Horizons, Feb 1954).

. . . The course in homemaking was dear to her heart since she rightly felt the importance of the place these girls would hold as the wives of Egypt's leaders. A teacher-training course was another addition to the program of the school. "Nearly all the girls will marry eventually, but now that the marriage age is rising, a number of these girls can prepare for and give a few years of special service first, thus blessing Egypt and enriching their own lives." (Letter from Ruth to her supporting and home Presbyterials–Oregon and Colo., 10 Feb 1942) . . .

In the memorial resolution adopted by the Association of the Egypt Mission in 1954, are these words: "Her students loved her . . . Her teaching and her training are reflected in many homes throughout Egypt. She claimed all who came under her care as one of her girls, and never forgot their names and their connections. Her positive Christian witness was a great encouragement and example to her students and to her friends, both Egyptian and American."

. . . One of the most trying times in Egypt would certainly have been during the uprising of 1919 against the British. This was a dangerous period for all foreigners. With few exceptions, the Americans were evacuated from Assiut. But there were boarding students whom the staff had not been able to get to their homes, so she and others risked all by staying with the girls.

She retired from Egypt in 1945. After visiting from coast to coast in America with her brothers and sisters and their sons and daughters, she took up residence in the WCTU retirement home in Glendale, Calif. In the Egyptian Mission memorial quoted from previously was also the following: "Her missionary service continued even after retirement, as she spoke to church groups, befriended Egyptian students in America, and recruited new workers for the land and people she loved." She died 20 Nov 1953–Glendale, Calif. –gathered and prepared by her niece, Janet C. Work–

James Ewing Work told of being sent to Crawford School–he and his little brother–and telling their mother after a few days that it was just too cold to go to school. Apparently, they were allowed to drop school until the spring term, but James always added that they spent the winter sliding down the hills.

Since it was impossible to get a secondary education in Redclyffe, James got his as preparatory work at college. He taught several terms of rural school before graduating from Westminster College, New Wilmington, Pa., in 1901. A week before the end of school he went back to Newburgh, N. Y., married and brought his bride to commencement, a most unusual thing for a student of those days. Her father was pastor of the Redclyffe United Presbyterian Church.

Immediately after graduation they took the train to Colorado where he worked for his father on a farm west of Ft. Morgan. Later, James was the owner, and on this fertile, level-lying, irrigated farm he lived for more than fifty years. James was a director of the Bijou Company and the lateral for years. For extra earnings in the early days, he and a team of horses often worked on the dirt work needing to be done for various irrigation reservoirs and canals.

James was an honorary vice-president of the American Sunday School Union, giving counsel to their non-denominational area missionaries working with the small Sunday School in schoolhouses, grange halls, and similar places. He was very active in Morgan County and the Colorado Council of Religious Education. . . . He was a member of the local school board and always assisted in the drives for Red Cross, CROP, war bonds, etc. At the time of his death, he was a member of the county board of the Beet Growers Assn. He worked with the county agricultural programs for many years and at the County Junior Fair.

James Work died after being struck by a skidding car as he stood near the road repairing the rural mailbox. The preceding week had been a very happy one with family members present to eat dessert with him on his 80th birthday and then to eat Thanksgiving dinner together the day before his death. Mr. and Mrs. Work, sons Roland and Albert, are buried in Riverside Cemetery, Ft. Morgan, Colo. –by his daughter–Janet C. Work– - photo p 202 -

He later moved to Monmouth, Ill. where he was an officer and general attorney of Bankers Life Insurance Co. of Ill. Sarah Josephine Work had a particularly close relationship with her stepmother, who had been a teacher. Sarah graduated from Normal School in Greeley, Colo., then returned to Ft. Morgan to teach. In 1909 she came to Calif. to teach what was then known as "domestic science", then a brand-new department in the Oakland schools. Two years later she married A. A. Brown, brother-in-law of her older brother Cree.

Her family and her church were her main interests. She was a member of St. John's Presbyterian Church of Berkeley for over 56 years and was active in the Women's Assoc. and especially the young people's work of the church. She had a particular interest in the struggle of the Negro people for equality–an interest growing, perhaps, out of the fact that her own grandparents had operated a "station" on the underground railroad. And her staunch Christian faith was a source both of strength to her and inspiration to others.

662 MARY AGNES WORK – d/o JOHN HARVEY and JANE (McCREERY) WORK (242); led a life of Christian service; The following letter–contributed by Janet Campbell Work of Ft. Morgan and written by Ruth A. Work is a fitting memorial

"It was a glad day for Egypt when Cora Dickey, principal of the PMI (Pressley Memorial Institute) brought Mary A. Work to the school. Her cousin, Ruth, had arrived a year earlier. With Mary's coming a dilemma arose, so from that day to this the two are known in Egypt as 'Miss Mary' and 'Miss Ruth'.

Miss Mary, a teacher of some years experience in Pittsburgh, was one who laid foundations deep and strong, as the lives of hundreds of Egyptian girls testify. Her daily Bible Class had first place in her work and her girls learned to love the Word and its Author.

She counted no part of the tedious task of teaching the beginnings of English trivial. She was encouraged in her task knowing that these future women of Egypt would find their most helpful reading matter in the English language–for their religious life, for wifehood and motherhood, the care of children–books on health, travel, art and fun,–good stories and history. For many years she devoted an hour each Friday after school to helping girls learn to read . . . She made very careful preparation for this hour, and in it inspired many a girl to love good books. The Library in the new PMI bears her name.

Miss Mary's excellent health gave her many years of teaching without a single day's absence, nor even an hour. She was agressive in launching new things. I well remember how enthusiastically she introduced the then new game of Basket Ball, and also how gladly she turned it over a few years later to Bess Laing, an expert, on her arrival. General Histroy she loved . . . She did much toward the development of the sewing and fancy work courses for the PMI and the Mission Schools in general . . . . Lacking a song for a given occasion, she would write one . . . I wonder how many 'Drills' she organized and trained . . . for our big public programs. The Nations and Peace was a favorite theme. Soon after coming to the school she organized the King's Daughters Circle, a fruitful source of spiritual light and growth to its members . . . .

Mary was a careful tither, usually, perhaps always, had a scholarship girl in the school. One of her students, whom she brought right through to graduation, is one of the Mission's best kindergarten teachers.

Throughout her long illness Mary felt herself 'upheld by the prayers of many friends' on both sides of the Atlantic. As she neared the end of her journey a cousin wrote: 'She has maintained her mental faculties and her cheerfulness to the amazement of the Sanitarium Staff, and her glowing Christian life has deeply influenced those who cared for her'. Miss Balleny's terse expression 'Miss Mary is a valiant soul' seems to me a perfect description . . . .

I am taking the liberty of using in closing Mary's message to her brothers and sister, painstakingly written on the very morning of her 'Crowning day.'–'I am going with joy. Good-bye, Good-bye, Good-bye.' " –by Ruth A. Work–

Clarence Merle Work moved to Colorado in the early 1890's. He met Sylvia at Greeley State Teachers College where they both graduated in 1897. She taught 6th grade in Rocky Ford, Colo. for 9 years. He taught for about 3 years near Fleming, Colo. but decided that there were other ways of making a living more to his liking. He was in the construction business for a number of years, and built several of the irrigation reservoirs near Ft. Morgan which are still being used. He also built some of the earliest stores in Ft. Morgan. Before his marriage, he and a cousin, Cree, built the home in which his children were born, and in which he was still living at the time of his death.

In 1901, the United Presbyterian church was built in Ft. Morgan, and Clarence was a charter member, as were several of his cousins. His interest in church work continued for the rest of his life. He taught an adult Sunday School class for over 70 years and had a perfect attendance at Sunday School for over 80 years. Sylvia was Supt. of the Primary Dept. for many years and both of them sang in the choir. He was an Elder most of his life. Their home had much in the way of religious as well as secular reference books and magazines, and reading the scripture and prayer continued to be a daily custom up to the time of death. I have heard people profess to be Christians, but it always seemed to me that my father practiced being a Christian. –by his daughter–Ellen Hackman–

Clarence M. Work, under contract, constructed parts of the Bijou Canal; Bijou Reservoir; Empire Reservoir; Jackson Lake and the Riverside system; all under the firm of Josiah Work, D.A. Canfield, J.W. McCreery and others. He later became a superintendent of the Bijou system for twelve years. He, among others, was responsible for the system in its most trying days–days of depression, drouth, and threatned foreclosure. Through their tireless efforts a reduction in interest and a much needed extension of the bonds were secured.

He md (1) ELLEN MARTHA ADAMS, of Pittsburgh, Pa., at Ft. Palmer, Pa., who d 13 Mar 1938. He md (2) SOPHIA _____ about 1948. She had worked for the Salvation Army with his sister, Anna. No children by either wife. He and Sophia did adopt a little girl. Shortly after that he died of a cerebral hemhorrage. Sophia took the little girl and started south, but died of a heart attack before reaching her destination. The last heard was that the doctor who attended Sophia in her last illness adopted the child.

Samuel attended the schools of Fairfield twp. and an academy near his home each summer where the foundations for a college education were laid . . . A term was spent at Westminster College while ripening for the teaching profession, where his cousin, Dr. D. A. Brown of Greenville, kept him from being hazed; perhaps he would have been a better man had he rowed his own boat and been properly initiated. After teaching three years in the schools of Westmoreland Co. and taking a business course in Duff's Mercantile College (which was very useful to him later in Egypt) he entered Monmouth College in 1897 because there were no high schools in the country in his day and his academy education was a little irregular and not enough of it. However, he graduated with his class and was honorably mentioned as belonging to the first honor group (today they would say the upper third). Not the upper ten.

He was licensed by Westmoreland Presbytery in 1903, having received an appointment to Egypt, as missionary, was ordained on June 7, 1904, and sailed for Egypt in September. He was located in Cairo from 1904-1906, in Benha from 1906-1912, Mansurah 1913-1926, and Luxor 1926-1929. He returned to the homeland on summer furlough in 1906 and married. Their work in Egypt was largely evangelistic, but in the delta he was always in charge of from four to 14 village schools, using them as messengers to bring the older folks. From 1915 to 1926 he was connected with the Mission Medical Boat Allegheny and worked with the doctor carrying on Bible readings in the tents and homes, the wife taking charge in the women's tents. Doctors were scarce and from 1917 they labored alone, Mrs. Work supplying medication from time to time according to doctor's orders.

In 1926 they were transferred to the work among the churches in the Upper Egypt Presbytery and were there until the depression came upon our church gifts and they were asked when returning on regular furlough in 1929 to remain in the home church.

It was a bitter disappointment to both of them to give up their life's work in Egypt, but in June of 1929 he received an appointment as stated supply at Murraysville, Pa. . . . later moved to the 7th Church in Pittsburgh. During his years there he took special work and completed the requirements for his PhD. He also did a year's graduate study at Princeton.

For six years she was research assistant to Prof. A. H. Bowley at the London School of Economics until she was invited to go to the United States and she was joint author, with him, of the book "Has Poverty Diminished?" For two years, from 1925, Miss Hogg was lecturer at Smith College in Mass. In 1927 she was appointed to the statistical department of the Russel Sage Foundation Research Institute in New York for which she conducted surveys of industrial and social conditions. In 1923 she issued a book entitled "Incidence of Work Shortage" and in 1934 was asked by the head of the Department of Labor Statistics of the US Govt. to draw up a scheme for a nationwide census of unemployment. She was also asked to carry on an inquiry into the cost of living, an inquiry which was essential to the government in drawing up scales of unemployment relief. Miss Hogg also acted as advisor to the American authorities on unemployment and the cost of living. Her methods have been put into wide use in the US. She d 3 Aug 1935 and was buried at sea. - photo p 333 -

1479 WINIFRED HOPE HOGG – d/o HOPE and MARY ELIZABETH (WORK) HOGG (649); b 1898; was b at Oxford, Eng. and moved to Manchester in 1903 when her father was appointed to the Chair of Semitic Languages and Literature at Manchester Univ. She was for six years at Ladybarn House School, then Manchester High School, and then to St. Leonard's School at St. Andrews, Scotland. After passing Part I of the Mathmatical Tripos at Newmham College, Cambridge, she took a second class honours degree in Chemistry at St. Andrews. After teaching for three years, two of those being at the Knox School for Girls in Cooperstown, N. Y., Winifred followed her mother's footsteps by being first sub-warden and then Warden of the various halls of residence for college students and for graduates. At the age of 35, realizing that the only world she had so far known was the academic world, she decided to train for social work at the London School of Economics. For seven years she ran a Social Service center for coal-miners and their families in the Doncaster colliery area of Yorkshire, and for another seven years was Warden of the Lady Margaret Hall Settlement, a resident center for social service in Lambeth with a Church of England Foundation.

At this point Winifred felt called to do work more directly related to the Church, so spent two years training to be a full time church worker, then twelve absorbing years doing parish work in the Southwark Diocese of London. Now that she is retired and living in the south of Kent, she still does a certain amount of church work, being secretary of her Parochial Church Council and a speaker for the Mothers' Union in the Diocese of Canterbury. She is also very much involved in the local Women's Institute. Her favorite recreations are gardening and singing. She sings in two choral societies and also conducts the local Women's Institute Choir. A good deal of time and energy in the summer months is devoted to hospitality which greatly enriches the lives of herself and her friend, Dr. Kathleen Norton. This summer ten of their visitors have been members of the Work family. This, Winifred and Kathleen feel, as well as being a pleasure, is some repayment for the warm hospitality shown them on their three months tour of the Work clan in 1959.

varied, beginning with Rural No. 1 with 47 pupils in 7 grades where she rode horseback 12 miles, did her own janitor work, and was paid the magnificent sum of $585 for 9 months work. Her finest moment came in 1963 when she was chosen Colorado Teacher of the year. Quoting from the nomination material—"She has lived a most exemplary life, has never been downed by the adversities of health or criticism, gives herself far beyond the call of duty both in school and in the community, keeps very well informed, is a person of many interests, but over and above all she always challenged her students, demanding that each one give his best, and requiring that each think for himself. Miss Work is a Master Teacher." Her many activities have included summer courses at Bethel College, Newton, Kans.; Colorado Univ.; Colorado Teachers College; and extension classes from Minnesota Univ. Summer long tours of the country by car, flower gardening, needlework, collecting religious poetry, are just a few of the many interests of Miss Work. She has always been active in the Ensign Presbyterian Church in many different capacities. - photo p 333 -

Josiah Work attended Monmouth College in Illinois and Lewis Institute in Chicago. He has worked for R. W. Hunt Co., Consulting Engineers; Stewart Die Casting Co.; Electro Galvanizing Co.; Tennessee Valley Authority. The TVA position he held from 1932-1946, started with the Railroad crew laying tracks and ended as Supt. of Phosphorus and Carbide Chemical Plants. He later went to Pocatello, Idaho as manager of the Phosphorus Furnace Plant for FMC Corp. A move to New York City as manager of the Carbon Dept. of FMC gave him the opportunity to develop the FMC Coke Process for which he is well known. He has traveled to Europe as a consultant on Phosphorus Furnaces and enjoys a reputation in the chemical world as an expert on both phosphorus manufacture and coke. From the resume of experience, qualifications, patents and publications credited to Mr. Work, it is obvious that his years have been spent searching for and discovering improved techniques for ore and mineral reduction. He developed a process for turning the cheap coal of Colo. and Wyo. into cokeing briquets for use in making steel. A plant at Kemmerer, Wyo. was designed by him and built under his supervision. He has retired to Harlingen, Texas and still does some work on a consulting basis for FMC and privately. Alice Caton Work holds a B.A. and M.A. from Univ. of Texas; taught Science in Knoxville Public Schools; was Personnel-Training Officer for TVA; has been active in Girl Scouting. Ceramics work, begun as a hobby in 1954, led to taking classes at Idaho State College and later at The Potter's Wheel in Westport, Conn. Her Work House shop has existed since 1958 and has moved to Texas along with the word "retirement". Jams, jelly, chutney-making have been added because of their interest in new and exotic fruits and their burgeoning garden production. Their daughter, Mary Della, has completed her Freshman year at Texas Arts and Industries Univ. at Kingsville, Tex. She was

She interned at Charleston General and during the WW II years, when her husband was serving in the armed forces (1940-46 as a Major in the Medical Corp in the So. Pacific) she took over his practice. It was quite an assignment, especially for a woman, as the practice was in the heart of Appalachian Virginia, a rural mountain practice with no telephone, few and poor roads and people who had never heard of a woman doctor before. Only the necessity of having no other choice and the McConnell name made them accept her. After the war she continued to practice while her husband returned to post graduate Medical Studies at Harvard. They then pulled up roots and went to Detroit where he did his graduate work at Henry Ford Hospital in Obstetrics and Gynecology. Towards the end of that four years, she returned to the Charleston area with their children and became the plant physician at the Holston Army Ammunition Plant until her husband finished his residency at Ford Hospital and became established once again in his practice. 1500 ALBERT STEWART WORK – s/o JAMES EWING and MARY ELIZABETH (STEWART) WORK (656); b 25 May 1904–Ft. Morgan, Colo.; d 6 Feb 1932–Frenchburg, Ky. graduated from Monmouth College, Ill. in 1926 and from Pittsburgh Theological Seminary in 1929. A church member from the age of nine, he early manifested a keen interest in Christian Work. The summer before finishing high school he attended the World's Christian Endeavor Convention in New York City as one of Colorado's official delegates. The same summer he attended the United Presbyterian Foreign Missionary Conference in New Wilmington, Pa., where he dedicated his life to full time Christian service. He was md 18 June 1929–Cedarville, O. to a college classmate, Margaret Janet Jamieson who was b 30 May 1905–Pattersonville, N. Y., d/o Ralph Alexander and Ida Augusta (Speer) Jamieson of Cedarville. On 25 June 1929, Albert Work was ordained to the ministry in his home church in Ft. Morgan. The young couple had hoped to serve in the foreign mission field, but because of the straitened condition of the church budget they could not be appointed to such service. Hoping the way might open up later, they accepted appointment to work at Frenchburg, Ky. The years at Frenchburg were filled with the joy of service as pastor of the church and superintendent of the school and mission. Mrs. Work was director of music. Together they had the joy of seeing young lives expand in Christian living.

Service for God is not measured in days and years, but in faithfulness and love. Rev. Albert Work passed away suddenly in his third year of service at Frenchburg, the result of a heart attack following surgery. Though the time of his earthly ministry seemed all too short, the memory of his life has borne precious witness to his Lord in the lives of many. One of those who had known and loved him made this comment concerning him–Men come to a point in their lives when they begin to think about distributing what they have accumulated on this earth. Rev. Work came into our lives three years ago and immediately began giving away all he had. Rev. Work's widow is now Mrs. Fred Huish and they reside at Phila. Pa. 1501 JANET CAMPBELL WORK – d/o JAMES EWING and MARY ELIZABETH (STEWART) WORK (656); b 3 Mar 1907–Ft. Morgan, Colo. She graduated from Monmouth, Ill. College in 1928, received her Masters from Colo. St. College in 1937. Her first two years of teaching were in the high school of Camp Creek Academy, a mission school operated by the United Pres. Church ten miles out of Greenville, Tenn. The next year was at Ezel, Ky. another mission school operated by the church for the mountain young people. She returned to Colo. in 1931 and remained with the same school district until retirement in 1967. The first five years she was assigned to a rural school, carrying the washing and drinking water to the two separate buildings she and another teacher served. As many as sixty children were in their charge and the daily round trip was 20 miles to one school and 40 to the other. They built the fires, swept the floors and sweltered in the unshaded buildings. Thirty one more years in elementary grades in Ft. Morgan preceded her retirement. Her other activities has included perhaps 10 years as county chairman of the Junior Red Cross, traveling and reporting her travels to other family members and serving the Ensign Presbyterian Church as deaconess plus many years of working with the Junior Dept. of the Sunday School. She enjoyed an extended tour of England the summer of 1968 and still makes her home in Ft. Morgan. She has contributed greatly to the success of this volume. - photo p 333 -

Harry McCall grew up around Smithport and early came to be an expert teamster. He tells the story of how he had completed his education through all of the available grades except the last one. He was sixteen years of age and his father wanted him to complete it. Harry agreed and attended school for a few weeks. But one weekend he went to the lumber camp and saw that his own team of horses which his father had bought him was unkept and ill-treated. The sight of this injustice was more that Harry could bear. He went to his father and said, "Dad, that man you hired to drive my horses is abusing them. I want you to give that man his money." His father complied, Harry took over as teamster, and his education turned from book-learning to practical life.

Harry also relates his experiences one summer around 1900 at Glen Hazel, a logging camp, in Clarion County. Most of the men in camp were from Marion Center and Rochester Mills and they had much in common. There on the banks of the Clarion River, they built a huge logging camp. The camp was conveniently located so that the garbage could be thrown out the kitchen window into the river. Harry's mother, Sadie Work McCall, was the cook and Harry's father, Harve, helped her morning and night. It was a tremendous task for one woman to cook for fifty men.

While the following material is not relevant to the completeness of the book, it has been added as an aid to the researcher.

It is a group of records accumulated during the compilation of this volume and will be of interest to many Work families. Some of it came in answer to queries, some through the various collections that were used and some from my personal research. The compiler made little effort to connect these families (except in cases of obvious connections) and it is highly probable they will overlap, even into the bulk of the foregoing history. Care has been taken to include all the information in the compiler's files of genealogical value and it is hoped names recorded here might add lineage information or at least some new clues to the problems of other Work families. All names are indexed in the comprehensive index following.

ALEXANDER WORK - was assessed in Allen twp, Cumberland Co., Pa. as early as 1753 and continuously thereafter until his death. He purchased land 20 May 1761 in Lampeter twp, Lancaster, Co., Pa. and sold it 25 Mar 1763 (Deed Book YY, p 518). The first tax list made in 1751 does not show the name of Alexander but the next list, made in 1760, shows Alexander to have been a taxable with 150 acres already warranted to him. This means that he must have resided in the county for some time. Probated: Will of Alexander - made 4 Mar 1780 and proved 20 Mar 1780; Will of Janet Work, his widow, proved 14 Dec 1798 (Will Book F, p 132); Will of John Work of Allen twp, proved 4 Feb 1799 (Will Book F, p 134); Will of William Work (Will Book H, p 89); administration on the estate of Martha Work 14 Dec 1801. It reads: stopped for a time with relatives in Cumberland Co. - then to Hopewell twp, Washington Co. - purchased farm from John Tweed near Buffalo Creek Church. His will, dated 13 Sep 1834 and proved 27 Mar 1837 at Washington Co., Pa. (Will Book 5, p 325). He is buried in Buffalo Village, Hopewell twp in the center of the old section and no marker remains. While there is some doubt about some of the facts presented in this paragraph, the record of his children is well kept and is as follows: It is said they lived in a

When he recovered his presence, he extended his hand saying "John Work of Texas" to which the other replied, "John Work of New York, Sir." Many years later, Anne Work, who was the daughter of John of Houston, was studying costume design and was delighted to discover a shop which carried shoes of just the right last for her narrow foot. She ordered several pairs which were not delivered and upon inquiry learned they had been sent to a regular customer (Anne Work) who wore exactly the same size shoe.

When news dispatches came into northern papers of Maj. Gen. W. T. Sherman's destructive advance from Atlanta toward the sea, Henry Clay Work was moved to put together a song that quickly resounded in the North. It was one of the few wartime songs to reverberate down through the years - in the north, not in the south. He was the son of an ardent abolitionist who became "trainman" in Missouri on the Underground Railroad and suffered 12 years in prison for aiding fugitive slaves to escape to the North. Young Work, forced early to live up to his name, mastered the printer's craft and wrote songs on the side. One of his revival songs "We're Coming Sister Mary" was popular before the war. He produced several songs each year of the conflict but none had such a public response as "Marching Through Georgia". Another well remembered by this generation is "Grandfather's Clock". He was also an inventor, his patents including a walking doll, a steam rotary engine, a knitting machine. He invested the returns from these ventures into a large fruit farm in N. J. and was bankrupted. He devoted his time to songwriting exclusively after this and published over a hundred in all. One other was the popular spiritual "Kingdon Coming".

WILLIAM WORK - of Lodge, Stronsay, Orkney Island celebrated their Golden Wedding Anniversary in 1924. A clipping, yellowed yet clear, tells of this family, part of them having emigrated to the United States. James W. Work of San Diego, Calif. tells of his family - wife Orthe, and children: Robert, James, John, William, Barbara Lynne and James Bews. James W. is the son of James Twatt Work who came to this country in 1902 and settled in Portland, Ore. He sent back for his sweetheart, Margaret McRae Bews and they were married in 1904. James Twatt Work's younger brother still resides in the Orkney islands and his comments are shown on page 21. It is evident that James T. had a sister in Scotland (Mrs. James Maxwell), a sister in San Diego (Mrs. Douglas), as well as the younger brother, William, mentioned above. There were perhaps others. An interesting excerpt from a letter dated 9 Oct 1968, addressed to the compiler by James W. Work of San Diego,reads - " My father told me he had been born in a stone-walled house, with roof of slate flagstones. . . do remember he said the house was about 400 years old at that time (Somehow I have the impression the family had occupied it all that time, but probably not as free men). My father brought with him a remarkable iron lamp, now missing. It had two pear-shaped cups, one above the other, and was used with a rush wick and burned the rendered oil of seal or whale fat. The lower cup served to catch the oil which dripped from the wick in the upper cup so that it could from time to time be poured back into the upper cup. He said this lamp was not used in his time but was from a time before. . . . (He) came to this country as a master tailor, but became a doctor, licensed for chiropractic, osteopathy and minor surgery." He md (2) Miss Astraea Nickerson 4 June 1944 at San Diego.
